Terrorists Strike in Saigon

Eleven Killed In Fire

ST. PAUL, Minn. AP -- Fire spreading with explosive force swept an old four-story downtown hotel-apartment early today, killing 11 persons and injuring 16 others.

Some occupants fled the Carleton Hotel with their clothing afire. Others jumped from upper floors and were badly hurt.

"It was a screaming mass when we got there," said Asst. Fire Chief William Maurer. "Three persons were actually afire. They met Firemen at the door."

Firemen poured water on victims to extinguish the flames.

"Some jumped while the men were putting up the ladders to rescue them," Maurer said.

A lot of screaming people jumped from second and third floors. Some landed on the sidewalk. One man broke his back.

Maurer said nine bodies were removed from the ice-coated ruins. The Red Cross said two others died in hospitals of injuries.

Waives in Traffic Case

NEW MADRID -- Only one felony case was heard this week in magistrate court. Nearly 40 persons appeared before Judge Erie Wright of Portageville as activity in the court returned to normal.

Robert Carl Lacy, charged with leaving the scene of an accident, waived his preliminary hearing before Judge Wright and was remanded to circuit court for trial with his bond set at $500.

Multiple-court traffic violation fines were levied against three persons; Hattie Mae Roach, $40 for careless and reckless driving and no operator's license; Argentry Hughes, $125 for driving while intoxicated and unlicensed operator (Hughes was also sentenced to six months in jail then placed on probation for one year); and Lurlene Robinson, $16 for improper registration of a motor vehicle and unlicensed operator.

Nettie Mae Polk, Thomas Jackson, and Thomas Armstrong paid a total of $172 for possession of non-intoxicating beer.

Sammy D. Pearson, charged with non-support, paid court costs of $20 and was ordered to pay $25 per month support.

Andy Hopper and Alfred Burton, paid a total of $30 for disturbing the peace.

Eight persons were fined for exceeding legal speed limits; Dewey L. Young, $20, Danny Wayne Lape, $15, Hershell Smothers, Edward Davis, John Frederick Schultz, William O. Boone, Shirley V. Capps, and Sharon J. Carr, $25 each.

Carless and imprudent driving brought fines to eight; Paul W. McClure and Glen L. Deal, $25 each, Houston Murphy and William Thomas Johnson, $15 each, Everett F. Hoggatt and Lawrence E. Ray, $35 each, Marvin C. Riggs, $45, and Mary Honeycutt, $20.

Nathan Nesbitt paid $35 and Willie Heath and Clarence Booker $15 each for careless and reckless driving.

Viking Freight Company was fined $110 on each of two counts of no Missouri PSC sticker; Pic Walsh paid $110 for the same offense and $11 for no state license.

Others fined were Emanuel Jones, $15, improper parking; Ira Anderson, $35, defective brakes; Beafurt Johnson, $25, permit unauthorized person to drive; Willie C. Duncan, $15, no operator's license; and James E. Wheatley and Joel Lee Haddock, $11 each, no vehicle brakes.

Wright Freed On Bond in Tavern Death

CHARLESTON -- Luther F. "Sunny" Wright, 47, farm laborer, has been released from jail on $10,000 bond and his preliminary hearing has been set for Feb. 16, in the fatal shooting of Edgar Bradley, 56, on Dec. 30, in Bardley's Belmont tavern. The action was taken this morning in magistrate court.

A coroner's jury Monday afternoon ruled that the death was an unjustifiable homicide.

Bradley was shot eight times by bullets from a .22 rifle and a .45 caliber pistol after an argument with Wright.

Wright reported the shooting to East Prairie police. Deputy Sheriff Jack Ivey put him in the Mississippi county jail at Charleston.

Wright had been employed by Bradley.

Sandburg 88 and Ill

FLAT ROCK, N.C. (AP) — Carl Sandburg, the poet and Lincoln biographer, marks his 88th birthday today in a sickbed. His wife thinks he'll get well and live to be 101.

"He'll pull himself out of this," said Mrs. Sandburg in an interview. "There's nothing that has ever defeated Carl. It's been a great life he's had because he knows how to make the best of things."

Mrs. Sandburg said her husband has not completely recovered from an intestinal inflammation which started in September. He was also shaken by a fall recently.

For years, Sandburg has predicted he would die at an age divisible by 11.

"It's inevitable, it's inexorable, it's written in the book of fate," the poet told a newsmen when he turned 80. "I had two great-grandfathers and a grandfather who died in years divisible by 11. If I don't die at 88, I'll go on to 99."

But Sandburg's 82 - year -old wife, who married him 57 years ago, takes no stock in the prophesy.

"I really think he'll live to be 101," she said. "He really has to do something different, you know.

"He still drinks goat's milk. That's why he's lived so long, but I wouldn't say that's what made him a poet."

Sticky Mission

Four U.S. Soldiers Wounded

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — Viet Cong terrorists struck twice in Saigon tonight, exploding a powerful Claymore mine at the military airport's main gate and a plastic bomb at a police substation across town. Among casualties were four U.S. servicemen, slightly wounded.

One Vietnamese was killed and three were injured in this first such outbreak of the new year.

It came shortly after U.S. briefing officers reported Allied troops and planes had knocked out hidden Viet Cong installations in three widely separated areas of South Viet Nam over the preceeding 48 hours.

The Claymore mine, which can be aimed to fire hundreds of steel pellets like a shotgun, cut loose at 6:18 p.m. from the seat of a motorized passenger cycle as American servicemen were streaming out of the gate of the airport. But the cycle had been parked between a cargo truck and a large tree and the tree took most of the charge.

A Vietnamese passerby was killed. Of the Americans injured, two were Air Force men. The others were a soldier and a sailor.

The police substation in eastern Saigon was hit an hour later. A plastic charge estimated to weigh 60 pounds, flung in the street by a bicyclist, blew in a wall and collapsed the main building, also surrounded by wire. One policeman, a woman and a child were injured.

The last previous attacks in Saigon were dozens of grenade assaults on American servicemen, trucks and billets marking the fifth anniversary Dec. 20 of the Viet Cong's political agency, the national liberation front.

The U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade, pushing through the steamy swamplands west of and supplies as the Viet Cong fell back before the American paratroopers.

The paratroopers blew up the fortifications on the sixth day of the first U.S. invasion in strength of the Mekong Delta, a Communist stronghold.

Other elements of the 173rd Brigade came on what one U.S. spokesman called a Viet Cong "general store" near the marshy Plain of Reeds, a Red stronghold and infiltration route close to the Cambodian frontier.

The paratroopers captured two guards. One of them carried several ounces of gold and 11,000 piasters, possibly part of a guerrilla payroll.

As the suspension of U. S. raids on North Viet Nam continued for the 14th day, spokesmen said B52s from Guam in a raid Tuesday night 70 miles northwest of Saigon destroyed two large tunnels, a bunker, 400 yards of camouflaged trench line and a supply area.

Johnson Still Friend

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson emerged today from still another scuffle with industry without seriously smudging his credentials as a friend of businessmen.

In an apparent victory for his "let us reason together" approach to national problems, Johnson batted down a $5-a-ton price increase for structural steel. He settled Wednesday for a $2.75 boost.

The White House emphatically denied that any behind-scenes deal preceded the announcement by United States Steel Corp. of the pattern-setting compromise increase.

But everybody knew there had been feelers and soundings-out on both sides. U.S. Steel had officials in Washington testing the administration's attitude. The administration — by White House admission — had people in contact with steel producers.

Unlike President John F. Kennedy in the steel showdown of 1962, Johnson talked tough but never let the controversy reach that point of no return at which a compromise would have been impossible.

Both sides knew — throughout the five tense days after Bethlehem Steel Corp. posted its $5 increase, to be followed by Inland Steel — that Johnson would accept gladly any settlement which did no real violence to the administration's anti-inflation guidelines for wage and price adjustments.

U. S. Steel came up with the formula.

Defector Says Life in Danger

SAIGON AP -- A young Polish interpreter for the International Control Commission told newsmen today he defected because he felt his life was in danger after he had voiced a desire to go to the United States.

Anatol Slavinski, 25, said he overheard Polish military officers discussing ways to get rid of him. He said this precipitated his defection Dec. 31.

Slavinski told a news conference his assignment to Saigon was his introduction to life in the free world. In his two months here, he said, he read many magazines and newspapers and he began thinking about defecting to the west.

MARSHALL, Mo. AP -- Missouri Valley College has been allocated $135,000 by United Presbyterian Church with which it is affiliated.

LERWICK, Shetland Isles AP --All 24 crewmen of a Soviet trawler which sank in the North Atlantic today were reported rescued after an air and sea search.

Move To End Strike

NEW YORK AP--Mayor John V. Lindsay reported to New Yorkers that subway and bus strike negotiations moved ahead in "good faith" bargaining which recessed early today.

But he cautioned that the public still "must sweat it out" until settlement of the six-day-old strike.

Heavy morning rain complicated already difficult transportation problems for the city's 3.5 million workers.

The city made a new money offer during a marathon night session which broke up at 2 a.m., but the parties would not say what it was. There had been a $187-million gap in negotiating positions for a two-year labor contract covering 34,400 transit workers.

Lindsay also disclosed that he had consulted with Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz.

As he emerged from the night-time session, Lindsay said:

"There has been some movement, nevertheless the gap remains wide between them. New offers have been made."

Lindsay declined to predict if this could lead to settlement of the 6-day-old strike, but he described the new offers as "a very important move."

Rain slowed the incoming traffic today and cars were bumper - to - bumper on many major arteries.

One thing that has been contributing to the prevention of chaos in the strike has been that the morning and evening rush hours have been spread out over a longer period of time.

Traffic Commissioner Henry A. Barnes announced a plan Wednesday for staggered working hours in lower Manhattan.

The New York Stock Exchange and the American Exchange said they would close trading 90 minutes early.

One Hurt in Two-Car Crash

A two-car collision resulted in one injury yesterday at 10:12 a.m. on East Malone Avenue in front of Barkett's Big Star.

Atlas Hatley, 140 North Third, charged that G. A. Blackwater, 130 Sixth, pulled out in front of him. He was driving a 1964 Pontiac.

Blackwater, driving a 1949 Chevrolet, said that he pulled out on the highway and his motor died.

India - Pakistan Talks Continue

TASHKENT, U.S.S.R. AP -- Premier Alexei N. Kosygin held more separate talks with President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan and Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri of India today in another attempt to get their summit conference off the ground.

Kosygin met with Ayub before seeing Shastri. The two Asian leaders were tentatively scheduled to meet later. But their meeting apparently hinged on their individual talks with their Soviet host.

The Indian and Pakistani leaders were still deadlocked over Kashmir, the Himalyan state that both claim. The issue has brought war between them twice since 1947.

Fined $56

Rosco Patterson, Sikeston, was fined $56 for driving while drinking by Judge E. R. Schrader in city court.

Drainage Problems Can Be Solved

More than 50 persons at the Holiday Inn last night heard Howard Jackson, Columbia, state conservationist of the United States department of agriculture, tell drainage district leaders and members of county courts, that there is a solution to the drainage problems in the St. John's Bayou basin.

The dinner meeting was sponsored by St. John's drainage district, which consists of a land area in Scott, Mississippi and New Madrid counties. It contains 249,447 acres, and begins from the Commerce hills to New Madrid, extending from the Sikeston ridge eastward. Of the total acreage 40,000 are subject to overflow and include 512 miles of state and county roads and 186 bridges.

It was estimated a solution of the drainage problem would cost $5,680,000.

"The project would serve both rural and city communities," Jackson said.

"Federal assistance could amount to up to 50 per cent depending on the flood control problem involved."

It was pointed out by representatives of the district that there is no other resource in the area more worth conserving than the water supply by regulating the flow in adequate drainage.

The project in Mississippi county would include enlarging the Charleston ditch, cleaning out and enlarging Maple slough ditch for a total of 40 miles.

In Scott county, the project would enlarge the North Cut ditch from the county line to Commerce; Blue Ditch, and the St. James main ditch from New Madrid county line to the Benton hills, for a total of 56 miles.

The New Madrid county proposal is to enlarge North Cut ditch from the Scott county line to junction with St. John's ditch; St. John's ditch from junction of North Cut on to the gates; St. James diversion ditch for a distance of three miles to provide outlet for Mississippi county water; Dry Run ditch from gates to LaForge Road, for a total of 66 miles.

Jackson said that an effort should be made to consolidate the drainage problems "under a main authoritative body, which could study the drainage problems from an overall viewpoint."

The problem of raising funds and sharing costs also should be combined, he said, to give the "needed results over a wide area."

Other proposals are dams in the streams to control water flow during heavy rain as well as a station at New Madrid to pump excess water over the gates during high water on the Mississippi river.

"Gates now installed prevent backwater from the river flooding the farm lands inside the set-back levee.

The speaker said that there once were 32 watershed districts in Missouri and today there are 65.

"The laws of congress since 1953 have changed greatly. Prior to this time the programs were geared to the flood problems only. Now they have been amended to take in both flood control and storage of water.

"Appoint a board that has studied the whole drainage area and we will make your project effective the first six months in 1966, with the help of your state and district representatives," Jackson said.

"Before you can levy a tax you must have 56 per cent approval of the watershed residents.

"You must also know about your soils, and all engineering problems, and that the flatlands present difficult watershed problems. The plans can be worked out if all necessary information is made available."

Present at the meeting included county court officials from the three counties, Congressman Paul Jones, Kennett, State Senator Pat Patterson, and Scott County Representative Tony Heckemeyer, and state and local conservation officials.

Seven Injured in Three Area Traffic Collisions

Seven persons were injured in three traffic accidents Wednesday.

Tom Marshall, 35, was hurt three miles south of Benton on highway 61, when his 1964 Chevrolet was struck in the side, by a 1955 Pontiac, driven by Frankie Thompson, 23, Illmo.

Thompson's car went out of control and crossed over on the wrong side of the road on wet pavement, the state patrol reported.

Marshall was taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, suffering from an injured knee, and mouth cuts. Several teeth were knocked out.

Thompson was treated by an Illmo physician for an injured ankle.

Five persons received minor injuries at 12:05 p.m. a half mile north of the Puxico city limits, when two cars met on a hill on a country road.

A 1959 Ford driven by Geneva Gaines, 16, Puxico, and a 1960 Ford, driven by James Tanner, 42, Puxico, struck almost head-on.

Miss Gaines and her three passengers, all of Puxico -- Linda Cookson, 16, Judy King, 14, Kathy Keene, 15, all suffered minor bruises. Tanner received a cut on the chin.

Selma Tipton, 54, driving a 1948 Ford, was struck by a 1949 Chevrolet pickup truck driven by Sylvester Glastetter, 43, Illmo, at 4:15 p.m. at the Scott City limits. She was taken to the Southeast Missouri Hospital, suffering from bruises and a possible broken arm.

Cars had stopped to make a left turn, when the Glastetter car skidded to the wrong side of the road and struck the Tipton car, the patrol said.

Klan Leader Tight Lipped

WASHINGTON AP -- Russell Magee, identified as a Ku Klux Klan leader and a supervisor in the Bogalusa, La., area schools, refused today to answer any questions about the Klan.

An investigator for the House Committee on Un-American Activities identified Magee as a former vice principal and basketball coach at Thomas High School near Bogalusa and said he now holds "a supervisory position on the local school board."

Schooner Hangs on Reef

MIAMI, Fla. AP -- A big cruise schooner with 47 persons aboard hung up on a Bahamas Islands reef today.

Coast Guard helicopters from Miami airlifted 14 persons from the 135-foot windjammer Polynesia 15 miles to Bimini, but left the others to be brought ashore by civilian boats if they wished to leave the stranded vessel.

The Polynesia was reported in no immediate danger with seas only one to two feet and weather mild. The Coast Guard said freeing her would be a commercial tugboat operation.

The Polynesia was the pride of Miami Capt. Mike Burke's "Windjammer Cruises" fleet.

It was the second such accident to befall the cruise line in the last week and the fifth in five years.

Nothing Serious About Kennedy Heart Block

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP).— Former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy's heart stopped beating for a second or two Wednesday, but his doctor says there is nothing serious about it.

"There was a brief loss of consciousness, but there are no after effects," said Dr. Saul Rotter. "He'll resume his normal activities."

The 77-year-old father of the late President John F. Kennedy collapsed in a chair just before noon after stepping out of the pool at his oceanfront winter home.

A male nurse carried him inside. Ann Gargan, longtime Kennedy companion, called the doctor and a priest.

Msgr. Jeremiah P. O'Mahoney administered final rites of the Roman Catholic Church.

Kennedy recovered from the heart block under oxygen and the doctor decided there was no need to hospitalize him.

Doctors listed him in fair condition today at his home.

Kennedy watched television, ate a normal supper and went to bed at 8 p.m.

He has been recovering slowly but surely from the stroke here Dec. 19, 1961, that left his speech and mobility impaired.

He is able to carry on a limited conversation but he is unable to move without help.

Kennedy, ambassador to Great Britain from January 1937 to late in 1940, came here several weeks ago for the winter. He swims regularly as part of a rehabilitative program.

Checkup for Ike

Adopt Scorched Earth Policy

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—To break the back of the Viet Cong, U.S. and Allied forces are adopting a program of destroying houses and crops in areas which feed and shield the Communist forces.

For years, Americans refused to participate in "scorched earth" efforts, leaving them to the Vietnamese. Now Americans are directly involved. They are trying to protect innocent people.

The broad-based program includes the establishment of free-bombing zones in Viet Cong regions, killing rice crops in enemy areas, and burning other crops and homes.

The rich, intensely cultivated flat lands south of the Vaico Oriental River west of Saigon are prime "scorched earth" targets. U.S. paratroopers from the 173rd Airborne Brigade began operating there last weekend.

They laid their base camp among the blackened frames of burned houses. Within two miles of the paratroopers' camp not a house was left standing. Constant pounding by artillery and planes had reduced every building to rubble.

The paratroopers' mission was to move out farther, round up all the people they could find, evacuate them north of the river to resettlement camps, and burn and destroy everything eatable and livable.

Patrols waded in neck-deep canals slicing through the canefields, crept stealthily down high dikes, and pushed through thick brush.

Every house they encountered they burned to the ground. Most were of thatch, but some were large with heavy wooden frames and neat gardens.

Every cooking utensil was smashed, every banana tree severed, every mattress slashed.

The American paratroopers are remaining in the area, enlarging the "scorched earth" zone. They know that the Viet Cong will rebuild the razed homes when they leave, make new earthenware pots and breed new chickens.

Capt. Henry Tucker, from Columbus, Miss., said: "Maybe if we can keep them busy rebuilding their houses and replanting the crops, then they'll have no time for shooting."

New Era in Weather Forecasting

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A new era in long-range weather forecasting opens this month with the launching of the first of several satellites combining to form a full-time operational forecasting network.

Within two to three years, weathermen "will be able to advise people not to go to the beach two weeks from Sunday because it's going to rain that day," predicted an official working on the project with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

A picture - taking satellite named TOS 1, which stands for Tiros operational satellite, is scheduled for launching late this month, probably Jan. 25 or 26, as the first fully operational weather satellite.

TOS 2 is due to ride aloft about one month later.

Although more than a half-million useful pictures were received from the first 10 Tiros weather satellites, their primary function was to test telecetronic systems to be used in weather monitoring by satellites.

Heart of the long-range forecasting system will be packed inside another satellite called Nimbus B, which will be launched in late 1967 or early 1968.

Sensors aboard Nimbus will record data such as the atmospheric pressure and moisture content of the air at various locations around the world. Remote unmanned stations on earth will record wind velocity on the earth's surface and relay this data to the satellite.

This information, coupled with photographs of cloud formations from two TOS satellites, "could enable weather predictions to be made two to four weeks in advance," said a spokesman for NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center.

Plans call for two TOS satellites to be in orbit at all times, with another on standby ready for launch in case an orbiting satellite breaks down or wears out.

One of the TOS satellites will be used to help weathermen on a local level. The other will send data to Goddard or U.S. Weather Bureau headquarters for worldwide forecasts, the space agency said.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Thursday, January 6, 1598, Heidelberg, Germany: Johannes Conrad Richtenstein invents the spitball.

The rising incidence of malaria in South Viet Nam may be complicated by a shortage of a centuries-old remedy--quinine.

The armed forces turned again to quinine recently when certain newly-found strains of malaria proved resistant to the synthetic drugs developed during World War II.

The Defense Department has stockpiled sufficient amounts of quinine to meet requirements for two years, based on the present rate of consumption. However, as U.S. forces expand their efforts in Viet Nam, the increased malaria casualty count could pose a serious problem unless new drugs are developed. Meanwhile, the medics are forced back to quinine, the oldest antimalarial of all.

Indicative of the zooming demand for quinine is the fact that the price of quinine has jumped more than five times over the levels of a year ago.

One factor in the growing shortage is that Indonesia, previously the world's greatest producer of quinine, has cut down most of its quinine-producing trees to make way for other crops.

Quinine was introduced to Europe by Jesuit missionaries returning from the New World. It is derived from the bark of the cinchona tree, and Indians in what is now Peru and Ecuador may have known about the bark's medicinal qualities even before the Spaniards arrived.

A person who has malaria suffers intense attacks of chills, fever, sweats, and great weakness. The attacks may recur for years.

Malaria ranks as a leading cause of death in many tropical regions of the world. Scientists estimate that about 100 million persons suffered from malaria during 1965, and that the disease will cause about 900,000 deaths this year.

Malaria is caused by one-celled parasites, protozoans of the genus Plasmodium, which burst victims' blood cells, causing anemia. The parasites are transmitted by the female Anopheles mosquito.

The French scientist Charles L. A. Laveran discovered the protozoa that causes malaria in 1880. In 1898, British scientist Sir Ronald Ross showed how mosquitoes spread the disease.

SOUR SIDE OF SOCIAL SECURITY

A deflationary jolt to the nation's economy is expected after Sunday, Jan. 1, when an increase in Social Security taxes takes effect. Workers and their employers must pump an additional $5 billion into the Social Security Trust Fund in 1966 in order to pay for higher retirement-survivor benefits and the new medicare program voted by the Congress in 1965.

Americans who earn $6,600 or more annually face a Social Security tax hike of $103.20 in the new year. This is in addition to the maximum $174 that the employee paid in 1965 on the old annual earnings base of $4,800. Take-home pay of a worker earning $6,600 will drop about $2 a week with his first pay check of 1966. The new maximum payroll tax of $277.20 will be matched dollar-for-dollar by employers.

A measure of the health of the economy will be whether the increase is taken in stride by workers and businesses, with no substantial reduction in consumption and employment respectively. Companies with large payrolls and narrow profit margins, however, may feel the need to raise prices as a means of offsetting the higher tax bite.

Wage-earners can draw some comfort from the knowledge that their bigger contributions are helping finance a 7 per cent benefit raise for more than 20 million Social Security recipients as well as making possible a new program of medical care for the aged starting next July 1. The Social Security System provides an indirect means for workers to help support aged parents and to buy basic insurance that will benefit surviving wife and children in event of disablement and death. In any event, Social Security tax increases already scheduled for the future will be much more gradual; in 1967, for example, the employer and employee each will pay only $13.20 more than in 1966.

PUBLIC RECORDS

When is a public record or document not a public record or document? When it may damage reputations. So says the Wisconsin Supreme Court in a case involving a newspaper's effort to inspect a report on alleged police brutality.

A lower court had ruled the report was public. The mayor and city attorney of Waukesha appealed contending it might damage the city or reputations of policemen. The Supreme Court reversed the ruling saying there are times when public interest would justify refusal to permit inspection.

"If the report contains statements of persons having first hand knowledge, which disclose police misconduct, the fact that reputations may be damaged would not outweigh the benefit to the public interest in obtaining inspection," the court said.

"On the other hand statements based on hearsay or suspicion, or inconclusive in nature, would be of small public benefit if made public, and might do great harm to reputations."

It seems to us that the public would get the point quickly if a report of this kind was based on hearsay, suspicion or inconclusive evidence and the police would be better off having it known rather than laboring under unrefuted allegations of brutality. Suppression of such documents only creates suspicion that the allegations are true. Public records and documents tend to become the private papers of officials if they have to be taken to court on every occasion to obtain a ruling on the public's behalf.

SHARE WITH CARE

A recent visitor from India, a world-famed eye surgeon who has performed or supervised almost 200,000 eye operations, made a statement on the eve of his departure that should make Americans feel proud. Dr. M. C. Modi, who is reverently addressed in India as "our brother who gives us sight," said: "Thank God for the heartfelt concern for suffering humanity that CARE and MEDICO feel."

The occasion for his remark was an interview in connection with CARE's 20th anniversary year. To Dr. Modi, the overseas relief organization's work is very familiar. For CARE and one of its affiliates, Lions International, have made possible the 74-year-old surgeon's pride and joy--a well-equipped trailer which is a hospital on wheels that he and 12 assistants use to travel the countryside.

Most of the operations that fantastic Dr. Modi has performed over the past 22 years have been for cataracts. Compared to the surroundings in an average American hospital, the conditions under which he operates are frequently beyond belief. His operating room is often a classroom in a village school. The light may be furnished by a flashlight, since more Indian towns are without electricity. Even more amazing in this saga of an amazing man is that Dr. Modi has never charged any patient a fee!

The files of MEDICO, the medical arm of CARE, contain accounts of the selfless labors of U.S. and Canadian doctors and nurses who volunteer to fight disease in countries with inadequate public health personnel and facilities. It is gratifying, therefore, to get word of a unique salute paid CARE on its 20th birthday by an important American pharmaceutical manufacturer. Sterling Drug is showing how the public can participate in "Share With CARE". When we buy any one of eight leading non-prescription medicines in retail stores and advise CARE of the purchase, the company has pledged to match each purchase by donating an equal amount of medicine to CARE.

This can be a worthy means for the American people to show their "heartfelt concern for suffering humanity," to use Dr. Modi's epression.

A couple visiting New York decided to take their 12-year-old son to a hit musical for his birthday.

They began to feel a little uneasy when in the opening number a line of chorus girls appeared clad only in a scanty green and white ribbon.

As the number ended the boy leaned over and said to his mother, "Mom, did you see that?"

"Did you see what?" asked the mother apprehensively.

"Those girls," replied her son, "They're wearing our school colors."

NEW YORK AP -- Jumping to conclusions:

A second wife will forgive her husband almost anything except the fact he has to pay alimony to his first wife. She feels the money rightfully belongs to her, and would almost rather see him thrown into jail then pay it.

No magazine in America is as interesting as the latest copy of a mail order catalog.

You can tell a man's age by the number of medicines he keeps in his office desk. If there are more than two, you don't have to see him to know that he is middle-aged. If there are more than four, he's about ready for retirement — maybe overdue.

A fellow generally can borrow more money from a girl with buck teeth than one who looks like she'd posed for a dentifrice ad.

When a wife works outside the home, her husband gets no pleasure out of helping her do the dishes. He does it because he feels he owes it to her — and in life there is no joy in owing anybody anything.

If someone hadn't already invented the wastebasket, someone would have to. It is about the most useful tool in a wasteful civilization. Without it we would choke to death in our own junk.

A sure way to test the affection of your girl friend is to leave a small piece of thread on the sleeve of your coat. If she doesn't see it and pluck it off within moments, you know she's thinking more of herself than she is of you.

It doesn't take talent or genius to become well-known in this world. A fellow who pastures a hippopotamus in his front yard is bound to win attention, sooner or later.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Riesel Picks Labor's Man Of The Year

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- A reporter, new to the beat, encountered the stolid Mr. Labor, George Meany, in the corridor of a San Francisco hotel not too long ago and asked the leader of some 13 million unionists what he thought of Jim Hoffa. Mr. Labor snorted, growled and made it plain that reporters just don't accost him even with questions about his acidy enemy.

Naturally the reporter was bitter and later cussed him. Most newsmen have been soured by Mr. Meany, and he reciprocates their lack of enthusiasm. So they write of him as the "aging, 71-year-old ex-plumber."

Well, I should age that way. In this column's corner George Meany, one of Manhattan's claims to real fame, is the labor man of the year -- THE MAN OF THE year, in fact.

He rates this merely because of his enemies--the underworld and the undercover world, Peking and Moscow, John Lewis, Jim Hoffa, kooks, and even some cabinet officials.

Because of arthritis, he walks with a shiny, black cane -- but the ex-high school baseball player's only weaknesses are cigars, colorful vests, golf and gin rummy. So much so that he took the train from Washington to San Francisco's AFL-CIO convention, over which he presided and at which he was elected unanimously to a sixth two-year term. And he played gin most of the way out.

The AFL-CIO president, synthesis of responsible trade unionism and labor action in this era's Mr. Labor for ever so many reasons. But primarily today he is Mr. Labor because he is the man the Communist internationals hate most, because he is the civilian who fights them most effectively on the global front, in the proletarian cities, where the workers are, and on the plantations where the peasants and the campesinos are and in the high councils of the world labor movement, where some of the Soviet's hidden allies are.

Why? What's his philosophy? It's best reflected in a conversation he had with the late John Kennedy. The President had called him in-- as so many Presidents have on critical questions -- to discuss selling wheat to the Soviets.

"I am sure you know that I do not like to sell anything to the Russians," the husky, blunt-speaking, broad-beamed, labor leader told the late President.

"I just do not like the Soviets; I don't like what they stand for. But there are two factors that appeal to me. One is food. It has always been the tradition of the American government -- the American people -- to give of everything they have to people who need food. We fed the Russians under the Hoover Commission back in 1922; and we fed them because Lenin, the Great Russian God, asked us to feed them. On that score I certainly would not object.

"There is another phase. . . This is the nation that was going to buy us. This is the nation that was going to out-produce us. This is the nation that was going to produce more articles of war and more guns and more butter and more ham and more meat etc., as Mr. Khrushchev bragged in 1959. It is a wonderful thing to know that that nation of optimists, which was going to rule the world, has to turn to a democracy and ask us to sell them wheat so they can feed their own people. . ."

It is the mark of Mr. Labor that Presidents have turned to him not for approval, not merely to "clear" with the unions, not as a courtesy, but for advice. And the Presidents will do so as long as Mr. Meany is in Washington.

Lyndon Johnson has and does. With the President, it is almost always "Mr Meany," almost in the manner in which it was "Mr. Rayburn." The "Mister" is a token of respect. Few realize that there are very few prominent men in Washington today who have been in this capital as long as have Mr. Johnson and Mr. Meany.

They go back to the thirties. They know the niceties and the roughhouse of in-fighting on the hill and the broken-field running a President must do.

A fraternity has sprung up between the two much as the comradeship between two college professors who were amongst the first to get on campus and then watch the Mr. Chips pass on.

It is an arrogant misinterpretation of history to hang a man for his age--especially such a man as Mr. Meany. It is as cruel as it is know-nothingness.

As will be seen when labor really hits the Senate in a drive to repeal Fourteen B, Mr. Meany has lung power, brain power, legislative power and leads a militant labor movement.

It was Mr. Meany who launched the original Labor's League for Political Education. And today, its successor, the Committee on Political Education is powerful in a thousand cities.

It has been Mr. Meany's guidance which has kept the AFL-CIO united and strategically strong, though he has said that he, himself, has never called a strike.

Thus by coupling political power with towering industrial strength and skyrocketing financial influence, labor under Mr. Meany has achieved the world's highest wages, best working conditions and consistently the loudest voice in government policy anywhere in the world.

True, he does not run his federation for the benefit of the news media. He barks and he avoids us if possible.

True, he deliberately dulls up his conventions and High Council meetings. But none of this negates the fact that few national leaders understand as well as Mr. Meany does the need for fighting totalitarianism everywhere, as well as the need for a free labor-management fraternity for such a battle against fascism, for peace, high wages and good profits.

He is, therefore, the people's man of the year.

Some companies wuz jes payin one percent dividend on the investment, others usin money frum stock sales to pay dividends. I sez to myself sez I, there is a hew on. I started sellin my stok slow like to keep frum scarin the little guys, you see when them little ones panic its heck to pay. Then I found out the big boys wuz borrowin to buy their own company stock to keep the price up. Then I got a letter frum our big boss askin why I wuz sellin stock? Had most of mine sold when the crash come in 29. Sold the last fur $30 00. A share I paid $98.00 fur. A year later the company offered to sell me the same stock at $10.75.

You see only thing keepin the wheels rollin now is confidence an everbody knows everbody owes too much. If the Fed. bank can put the brakes on widout goin in the ditch, it may save a heck of a wreck later.

H. L. Hunt Says

WHEN GOVERNMENT IS THE CUSTOMER

The Treasury of the United States is the greatest single concentration of wealth in the world today, or in all of history. This makes our federal government not only the biggest collector and spender of money there has ever been, but also the biggest business activity. Since government relies on force to collect its operating funds, there is no way to apply the objective measurement of the market to determine the economic value of anything government does.

Many informed Americans are familiar with these facts. Some are less familiar with government's role as customer. We tend to think of customers as almost entirely individuals or private businesses buying on the free market. But the federal government, having so much to spend, is also the nation's biggest single customer.

The federal government as customer is the primary support for many American businesses and, in turn, for whole communities in which such a business is the dominant economic activity and chief employer. When government is the customer on this scale, a new factor is added to the complex maze of government controls in which we all live. A new and worse maze engulfs those who must tailor their production to the bureaucratic whims and bewildering "channels" of procedure so characteristic of government in action.

Always multiplying, this strangling web of confusion and red tape chokes off true enterprise and initiative in the private companies which find the federal government to be their chief customer. Thus the cost is paid not only by the taxpayer, but by the entrepreneur who seems most favored by federal spending. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The Justice Department's crimebusters will open a grand jury investigation later this month into organized crime in Miami. They hope not only to trap some of the underworld's big birds who fly south for the winter but to determine whether Cuban Dictator Fidel Castro obtains precious U.S. dollars by rigging the largest quarter-and-dime lottery now operating in this country.

William G. Hundley, the modern Elliott Ness who heads the Justice Department's special unit on organized crime, will go to Miami personally to kick off the investigation.

He is disturbed over the fact that Castro has absolute control over the the 57-year-old Cuban National Lottery, long a favorite source of numbers for numbers racket in this country. This puts him in a position to pick the pockets of hundreds of thousands of American citizens, who wager their small change on the fall of the numbers each week in Havana.

The drawing is broadcast, supposedly live from Havana, at 1 p.m. on Saturdays. Persistent reports have reached federal authorities, however, that Castro "fixes" the lottery and relays the winning numbers in advance to his agents in the United States.

By scattering their bets discreetly from Key West to Boston, they could clean up an estimated $500,000 a week--enough to finance Communist Revolution throughout the Western Hemisphere.

CASTRO'S LOTTERY

Internal Revenue agents, who have tried to track down evidence that Castro is rigging the lottery, have uncovered enough to arouse their suspicions, but no positive proof. The Federal Grand Jury will attempt to dig deeper.

Hundley's Crimebusters are also eager to break up the crime syndicate which controls the numbers racket in Southern Florida. They have evidence that it is run by the old Cleveland mob.

One of the bosses, Morris Kleinman, now owns a home on fashionable Bay Harbor Island outside Miami.

The day-to-day operations are directed by Hyman Martin, who in his leaner days was known as "Pittsburgh Hymie" but is now more appropriately called "Fat Hymie."

He has an arrest record dating back to the Roaring 20s's when he was once picked up for highway robbery. He was convicted in 1931 of killing Cleveland Councilman William Potter. But lawyers wangled a new trial, several witnesses changed their stories, and Hymie went free.

Only a minor racketeer, Solly Hart, ever served a sentence in the famous murder case. Caught with a pistol, he went to jail for carrying a concealed weapon. He is now in Miami, too, working with his old pal, "Fat Hymie."

Meanwhile, the Miami Herald's crack crime reporter, Hank Messick, has turned over a compost pile of gangland-political connections, which will also keep the Federal Grand Jury busy.

PEACE STATISTICS

President Johnson is keeping a careful count on every conversation held and every overture made in his present peace drive. He is preparing to quote these statistics to anyone who calls on him in the future, crying peace.

The President wants to give the peacemakers their chance. He is sincerely exploring every path, knocking on every door that might possibly lead to peace. Yet he is known to have little faith in the outcome. The most he hopes to accomplish is to convince the world that it is the Communists who are obstructing peace in Viet Nam.

The President plans to lay the story of his peace drive before congressional leaders. He will plead that nothing short of military defeat will compel Hanoi to accept a meaningful peace. Therefore, he will ask for a vote of confidence in the form of a congressional resolution authorizing him to take whatever military action he considers necessary to continue the war.

Of course, the pressure for peace from the people of the world may force both sides to the truce table. But the North Vietnamese response to the peace feelers has indicated little interest in settling the Viet Nam war except on their own harsh terms.

The leaders in Hanoi are the same men who directed the North Vietnamese war against the Japanese and the French. They have always managed to triumph, almost miraculously, against overwhelming odds. They see in the opposition to the war by many Americans the same indecisiveness and division that weakened France and led to the French defeat a decade ago.

Thus the peace demonstrations in this country, by strengthening the North Vietnamese resolve to continue the war, may be helping to achieve exactly the opposite of their declared purpose.

RACIAL SCANDAL

J. Edgar Hoover came up to Newton Brewer at the Laurel Race Track outside Washington recently and congratulated him on becoming the New Maryland Racing Commissioner.

"I knew your mother and father," said the G-man boss. "They knew the difference between right and wrong, and so do you."

Brewer was appointed after it was revealed that Gov. Millard Tawes' son had written insurance for the Bowie Race Track and that the former racing commissioner was getting racing dates ok'd by one of the governor's chief henchmen.

One of the first things the new commissioner did was to stop the chaining of horses, a practice of beating horses with a chain so the rattle of the chain falling in the starting chute will start them off fast.

USA RATES LOW IN LATIN AMERICA

Despite bland assurances by Dean Rusk and Averell Harriman after their return from the recent foreign ministers' conference in Rio De Janeiro, our relations with Latin America are today at the lowest ebb since we pulled the Marines out of Nicaragua, 33 years ago.

The big difference between then and now is that we didn't much care before 1933 how the Latinos felt toward us. Now there is a deep concern that anti-Yanqui sentiment may become pro-Communist sentiment.

Ironically, this preoccupation with the threat rather than with its causes is a prime reason why many of our erstwhile friends throughout the 19 non-Communist Southern Republics have grown disillusioned with us again.

A second important reason is that, though we never tire of preaching democracy, we are always ready to play ball with the DE FACTO regimes set up after the overthrow of democratically elected governments.

Until recently, we could count on being defended from these charges by a certain number of influential Latin American sympathizers. They would point out that we were trying to do something about the root causes of radicalism through the Alliance for Progress, and that our recognition of military juntas was just a mark of our reluctance to intervene in another country's domestic affairs.

Neither argument is being listened to these days. After four years, the Alliance has made so little progress that Lyndon Johnson felt obliged, during the Rio conference, to promise it would be continued beyond the original 1971 cutoff date.

As for the non-intervention pretext, our actions in the Dominican Republic scotched that for at least a generation. The common Latin American belief is that we not only intervened there but intervened on the side of the anti-Democratic armed forces.

Only five Latin American countries voted against us in the Organization of American States last May (with the other abstaining), when we tried to make that interventional multinational. But the hard fact is that just six governments backed the more unreservedly and not one of these holds power through free elections.

Brazil's is a military regime installed by a coup. Paraguay is an old-fashioned, one - man dictatorship. Guatemala and Honduras are currently run by military juntas which ousted legitimate governments in taking over.

Haiti, on the western third of the same Caribbean Island with the Dominican Republic, lives under the terrorist rule of a man who has declared himself president for life. And Nicaraguans have as head of state a puppet of the Somoza family, dominant in that nation for more than 30 years.

These were the six countries which wholeheartedly approved the U.S. scheme for an inter-American peace-keeping force in Santo Domingo.

What persuaded five other Republicans to go along with the idea is best expressed by Colombia's Foreign Minister, Jaramillo Arrubla, who explained privately:

"My government-- and I know this to be true of several more -- felt that the best way to confront the faith accompli of U. S. armed presence in the Dominican Republic was to try to neutralize it as much as possible."

But reaction at home, wherever there was enough freedom of expression to let it be heard, ran so strongly counter to the plan that Colombia, Argentina, Bolivia and Panama -- all of which voted affirmatively -- later backed out of supplying soldiers for the unit.

Little Costa Rica, with no standing army, sent 21 national policemen. This was so unpopular with Costa Ricans that President Francisco Orlich's party is likely to lose the next Congressional elections as a direct result.

While John F. Kennedy was president, the Alliance for Progress ranked all over Latin America as the hottest item to come out of Washington since Franklin Roosevelt proclaimed the Good Neighbor Policy.

It wasn't so much that the Alliance offered any magic cure-all for the monumental ills afflicting that region, but the things Kennedy said about it, the way he said them, and the evidence of his continuing personal interest in the undertaking helped to build up hope.

Everything President Johnson has done since moving into the White House has tended to deflate those hopes. For one thing, he promptly put fellow Texan Tom Mann in charge of Latin American affairs, and Mann is known south of the border as a "Cold Fish" who favors concentrating Alliance investment of "self-liquidating" projects.

Roads and schools, two of Latin America's most vital needs, can never come under that heading. It was for this sort of basic necessity that the Alliance was conceived and launched, not to make profits.

Now Mann has moved up to become Undersecretary of State.

Mrs. Jackson Hunter Gives Program On DAR History

Mrs. Loren Lohr and Mrs. Earl Jarvis entertained the King's Highway Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at the home of Mrs. Jarvis Monday.

Mrs. William Huff, the regent, presided and read the president general's message which emphasized the three aims-patriotism, education and service.

Miss Margaret Harris gave the National Defense Report on the activities of Herbert Ceptheker who is the Communist party's top theoretician and who is now on a mischief-making trip to the North Vietnamese capital. In 1965 he led a highly successful Communist propaganda campaign on American campuses. Communist officials made speeches to 32,000 students at 60 colleges across the country. He made about half of these appearances and the Communists are delighted on the upsurge of radical thinking among the country's young people.

Delegates were elected to the state and national meetings: Mrs. Joseph L. Baker and Mrs. Joseph H. Hayward to the state meeting and Mrs. Helen Loud Jones and Mrs. A. J. Renner to the continental congress in Washington.

Mrs. Jackson Hunter gave the program on the history of the D. A. R. In the late 1800's several organizations were formed to perpetuate the memories of the Revolution but they all excluded women. Mrs. Mary Smith Lockwood, a writer on the Washington Post, wrote a scathing article for the paper pointing out the heroic part played by numerous women during the Revolution. Mrs. Benjamin Harrison talked with Mrs. Lockwood, Mrs. Ellen Walworth, a Washington attorney; Miss Mary Decha and Mrs. Eugenia Washington. On Oct. 11, 1890, a meeting was held of women interested. Eighteen were present and 11 of them paid $33. The Sons of the Revolution helped by serving on an advisory board and helping draw up the Constitution. The First Continental Congress was held in 1892 and the meeting ended with a brilliant dinner at the White House given by Mrs. Harrison who was the first president general.

Congress granted a National Charter in 1895. Soon a library was established and a site purchased for a permanent building. The library now contains 56,000 volumes, pamphlets and microfilm rolls on generalogy and revolutionary history.

Constitutional Hall is the finest auditorium in Washington and is used for concerts and lectures by many organizations. The museum contains many beautiful historic items, gifts to the society. These buildings are the most valuable owned by any women's organization in the world. The society now has 185,000 members.

Mrs. Hunter concluded by giving a quiz on the history of the D. A. R. Mrs. Lohr won the prize, a beautiful azalea.

Earl Allen Speaks To Civic Club

The Women's Club met Tuesday afternoon at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. B. J. Murback; dessert was served by assistant hostesses Mrs. Max Chandler, Mrs. Harold Hill and Mrs. Raymert Miller. During the business meeting Mrs. Jack Brady was elected secretary to fill the unexpired term vacated by Mrs. Belsheim's resignation.

Mrs. Whitworth introduced the guest speaker, Earl Allen and told of his knowledge and long interest in his subject, the circus. His talk was titled "The Circus -- as it Used to Be; As it Is Today" and was concluded with a film on the circus with its arrival, construction, parade and performance in a small town in Iowa in the year 1937. Recorded calliope music played during the film showing created an atmosphere of authenticity. Circus posters from Mr. Allen's extensive collection decorated the walls of the room.

Mr. Allen is central vice president of the Circus Fans Association and he and Mrs. Allen have attended many of their national conventions. He is also a member of the National Awards Committee for the Circus Hall of Fame. The Allens have extended their interest in this hobby to the decor of their home which has a circus room as well as an annex in the basement which also is decorated in a circus theme.

The February meeting of the Civic Club will be at the home of Mrs. Cline Ables.

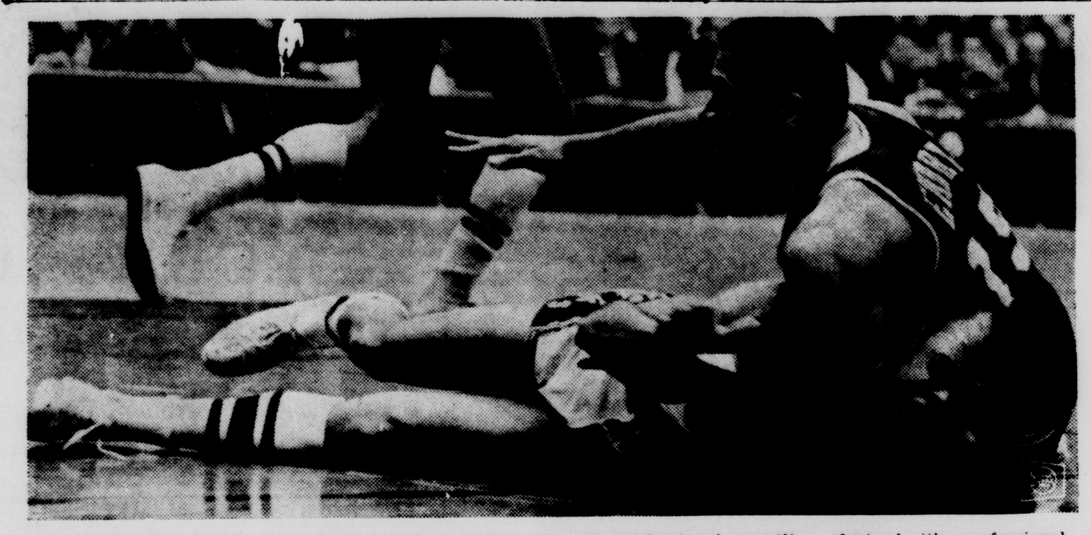
Scott Central At Armory Tonite

Sikeston's basketball Bulldogs will be facing a tough assignment tonight at the Armory on their return to action tonight against Scott Central's redhot Braves who knocked off Cape Central last week in the Cape Christmas Tournament.

Sikeston will enter tonight's encounter on the Armory court well rested from a 53-49 loss to Jackson in the Bulldog's last outing December 14, at Jackson.

Tonight's action at the Armory will begin with the preliminary B-game at 7:00, followed by the varsity duel at approximately 8:30. Keeping pace with their varsity team, the Brave's B-team forces also have a fine record of 9-2.



HAZZARD-OUS DUTY—It looks like it, but actually it's not professional wrestling. Instead, it's professional basketball. The combatants are Wayne Embry (15) of the Cincinnati Royals and Walt Hazzard, below, of the Los Angeles Lakers. Give Embry three points for a near-fall.

Richland "B" Tournament Results

RICHLAND -- Bernie continued its winning ways here last night by defeating Charleston 83-80 in one overtime period. Bernie leading 36-35 at half time had to muscle their way into the Semi-finals in one overtime period outscoring Charleston nine points to six.

Craft led all scorers for the night as he poured in 30 for a good night's work. Brown and Simpson led Charleston with 23 and 20 points respectively.

In the second scheduled game of the night Bloomfield had to forfeit to Advance because of a ruling that no boy can play tournaments back to back, Richland also had to drop out of the tournament because of the same reason. This left Puxico still in the tournament. Richland and Bloomfield seeded number one and three respectively were the top contenders to meet in the finals.

Richland played a regular scheduled game with Dexter and defeated them by the score of 62-42. Richland led by Fowler with 23 was the big gun for the Rebels who led at half 35-18. Knight led Dexter scorers with 10 points.

Mets Ask Waivers on Gary Kroll

NEW YORK AP -- The new York Mets asked waivers today on right-handed pitcher Gary Kroll and sent him to the Houston Astros' Oklahoma City farm club in the Pacific Coast League for cash and a minor league player to be named later.

Kroll, who was 6-6 with the Mets in 1965, was optioned to the Mets' Buffalo affiliate in the International League but he did not report. Instead he went to Provo, Utah, and said he was quitting baseball to resume his education.

Kroll, 24, has since talked to Houston officials and changed his mind, a Mets spokesman said.

A sign outside a bar in Buffalo reads, "Never give a drunk black coffee or you'll wind up with a wide-awake drunk on your hands."

Bill Russell States Coaching "For The Birds"

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Before Wednesday night's game Bill Russell of the Boston Celtics considered coaching "for the birds." His sentiments on the subject may be even stronger today.

The Celtics lost to the Los Angeles Lakers 120-113, snapping a string of five straight victories Russell had run up as temporary coach of the National Basketball Association team.

As in the past Russell was at the Boston controls in the absence of Coach Red Auerbach. Auerbach did not accompany the team to Los Angeles because of the serious illness of his father.

Before leaving for the West Coast, Russell had this to say about coaching:

"I don't have the temperament for it. I get too tough on the player-Bill Russell. He's nothing — that Bill Russell — when he plays for me."

Against the Lakers, player Russell contributed only 11 points to the Celtic attack which was led by Sam Jones with 23. Jerry West scored 29 and Walt Hazzard 25 for the Lakers.

In other league action, San Francisco edged New York 118-117 and Baltimore downed St. Louis 114-101 in a doubleheader at Baltimore, Md., and Cincinnati defeated Detroit 117-103 at Dayton, Ohio.

Billy Conn Voted To Boxing Hall Of Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Conn, who gave up the light heavyweight championship to make two unsuccessful tries for Joe Louis' heavyweight title, has been voted into Boxing's Hall of Fame.

Four other boxers also were elected in a worldwide vote of sports writers and sportscasters conducted by Ring Magazine.

The other four were old-timers Jake Kilrain, Johnny Coulon, Young Corbett II and Owen Moran. They brought the total in the hall to 87.

Conn captured the light-heavy title in 1939, beating Melio Bettina and Gus Lesnevich in elimination bouts. He then relinquished the crown to campaign as a heavyweight, getting his first shot at Louis in 1941.

Conn lost but built a solidlead on points until the 13th round when he was stopped. Five years later, after both had served in the military, they met again and Louis knocked Conn out in the eighth round.

Miller Trophy To Ernie Kennedy, of ISU

AMES AP -- Ernie Kennedy, who has completed his football career at Iowa State University, and junior quarterback Tim Van Galder, were the top winners of awards Wednesday night at a Cyclone recognition dinner.

Kennedy, senior defensive end from Cincinnati, was named the Lineman of The Year, was presented the Miller Trophy for the greatest contribution to the squad and was honored as the best scholar in the university's industrial administration department.

Van Galder of Madison, Wis. was given two awards. He was named Back of The Year and received the Aulman Memorial Scholarship.

17th Annual Senior Bowl Saturday

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Football players in Mobile for Saturday's 17th annual Senior Bowl hoped today for clearing skies to permit the first good practice day since they arrived last Monday.

Two-a-day practices were scheduled. Both Weeb Ewbank, coaching the South team, and North Coach Mike Holovak indicated they may drill twice Friday also since steady rain has sharply cut into practice.

Despite the rain, the Rebel squad got in a solid workout Wednesday.

The probable starting South offensive unit continued taking shape and it appeared several positions have been settled.

Injured Alabama quarterback Steve Sloan threw the ball for the first time in Wednesday's work. But Texas A&I's Randy Johnson will probably open at quarterback.

Sloan's status is not definite, but even if he is able to play, Johnson apparently will have an edge. Johnson has had the advantage of working with Rebel receivers all week.

Out Of The Can

Dream of catching your own "canned" salmon? Well, if fishery biologists are successful in many states across the country, this seemingly unlikely event may come to pass.

The salmon in question is kokanee, a close cousin of the Pacific sockeye species, relate the fishing experts at Mercury outboards. While possessing certain traits common to the salmon tribe--especially table fare appeal -- this diminutive salmon shuns seaward migration.

A freshwater dweller, the kokanee represents a bright hope in the fishing picture which becomes more challenging to biologists each year. With fingers crossed, experimental introductions are being made wherever suitable waters exist.

Kokanee are cold water lovers, preferring a temperature of around 55 degrees. In many recently constructed reservoirs, such conditions prevail. After spawning, which occurs every three or four years, kokanee die --characteristic of Pacific salmon.

Fishing for these tasty gamesters is largely done by trolling at favorable depths. A worm-baited hook preceded by weighted gang spinners has proven most productive in kokanee waters. Since they run in schools, where one is taken more action in the same spot usually results but handle with care; they possess extremely soft mouths and must be boated with caution.

Though most familiar in western states today, kokanee experiments are taking place elsewhere. With persistance and good fortune, the folks at Mercury say, there is a possibility that these savory fish may become fairly common across the land.

Kokanee may never replace the canned variety, but they'll be a welcome addition to every fishing family.

Rodeo's Big Money Winner

DENVER, Colo. -- Idaho's rangy Dean Oliver, rodeo's big money winner for the last three years is pacing the field again for 1966, the professional Rodeo Cowboys Association reported Monday.

Oliver, 35, collected $3,539 for a little more than a half-minute's competition during the just-completed Dallas, Tex. All-Star rodeo to maintain his now familar spot at the top of the game's money charts.

The big man from Boise -- six, three and 210 pounds -- bested 88 other calf roping entries with total time of 24.8 seconds on two calves and wrestled down two steers in 10.8 seconds, finishing fourth in that event, for the lion's share of an overall $34,446 prize money at stake in the Texas state fair coliseum.

Oliver logged $33,163 in winnings last year to nail his third consecutive all-around cowboy championship, boosting his career total to over $283,000. He started on the pro rodeo trail in 1952.

Other big money winners at Dallas included William Harris, Colleyville, Tex., $2,423 in steer wrestling; Junior Garrison, Marlow, Okla., $2,005 in calf roping; Bob Berger, Halstead, Kas., $1,370, saddle bronc riding; Paul Mayo, Grinnell, Ia., $1,363, bull riding; Harry Tompkins, Dublin, Tex., and Jim Mihalek, Broomfield, Colo., $964 each in bareback bronc riding.

The big-hat fraternity competes this week, January 3-8, at Odessa, Tex., and then will head north for Denver's National Western stock show and rodeo, January 14-22. The latter offers over $60,000 prize money.

Indoor Track Meet Opens at Cow Palace

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Milers and two-milers take spotlight roles Saturday night as the third annual Examiner Invitational Indoor Track meet opens the United States season on the boards of the Cow Palace.

Great Britain's Alan Simpson and John Whetton challenge America's Jim Ryun and Bob Day in a mile which could bring this area's first indoor time under four minutes.

In outdoor races, with fewer turns, each of the quartet has run well under four. Ryun, a freshman at Kansas, won the AAU title last spring and has a best time for 3:55.3, the American outdoor record.

Bob Day of UCLA captured the National Collegiate Athletic Association crown in June and posts a best of 3:56.4. Simpson holds the fastest time in Great Britain with 3:55.7 while Whetton has run a 3:55.7. The latter last season won 19 indoor races out of the 20 he ran.

Gerry Lindgren, the Washington State freshman who beat Russia's best in 1964, heads the two-mile field. It includes John Lawson of Kansas, who just was edged out in the NCAA meet last spring.

Twenty-two events are on the Saturday night schedule.

FAMILIAR FACE?—Randy Matson, the world's record holder in the shot put, has temporarily switched sports at Texas A&M. He's the center for the basketball team.

Mrs. L. B. Kornegger was called to Charleston Wednesday on account of the illness of her daughter and grandson, Mrs. George Kirk and baby.

A traveling faker permitted himself to be chained on the streets of Sikeston Tuesday with 55 feet of chain and 13 locks. For a half hour he stood locked fast while the crowd of perhaps 200 people made up $10 for him. Then he burst his bonds with all apparent ease.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Kirby celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home, 211 Moore avenue, with a family reunion on Christmas Day. They were married September 29, 1895, but postponed their celebration until Christmas when their children could be with them.

Three persons were killed instantly when a southbound Frisco Railroad troop train struck a Chevrolet truck in which they were riding at the Kewanee crossing Saturday afternoon. The dead are: Willie Cox, 40 years old; Vernon Cox, 19, son of Willie Cox; and Ray Sizemore, 19.

Eighteen months after he met death in action in the Philippines, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Derris of Sikeston, parents of Capt. Walter E. Derris, jr., were officially notified by the War Department of his death last Thursday, January 3.

THE Outlook for Business
for the first six months of 1966

PAPER INDUSTRY
John R. Kimberly, President
Kimberly-Clark Corporation

With its wide range of end products and the diverse markets in which they are sold, the pulp, paper, and paperboard industry pervades our entire economy. Consumption closely matches the ups and downs of the total economy, and paper industry earnings have generally followed the cyclical pattern of American industry.

Throughout 1965, the paper industry has been booming, with operating rates the highest in several years. Unfilled order backlogs remain high in most lines of paper and paperboard, with inventories at satisfactory levels.

Consumption of paper and paperboard in the United States in 1965 was expected to total about 48 million tons, a 4 per cent increase over 1964. This is close to 500 pounds per person, an important milestone of growth.

Every indication is that the vitality of 1965, in both the general economy and the paper industry, will carry forward into the first half of 1966. We look for paper and paperboard consumption to be at the 50 million ton annual rate, or 4 per cent ahead of 1965. Continued high levels of industrial activity will support demand for paperboard and other packaging materials supplied by the paper industry. The outlook for consumer income and spending is favorable for disposable paper products, as well as the newsprint and printing papers that carry the billions of advertising messages.

Capital expenditures of the paper and allied products industry have been at the $1 billion a year level since 1964. Outlays in 1966 are currently forecast at about $1.3 billion. Such record spending levels over a period of years suggest that a potential surplus of capacity for certain types of pulp, paper, and paperboard may loom as a problem for the industry in the 1966 to 1968 period. However, it is my conviction that the industry has been learning to live with similar problems since 1960. The desirability of a capacity cushion to meet short-term surges in demand has been repeatedly demonstrated in recent years.

Economic development abroad is expanding markets for U.S. pulp and papermakers. The growth potential for paper in the industrialized nations of Europe and the Far East is substantial in view of the fact that per capita consumption is far below that of the United States. The 1966 outlook is for at least a 4 per cent increase in exports over the 1.8 million tons shipped abroad in the current year.

Paper industry expenditures on research and development in 1965 were close to $85 million. While this is not a large share of industry sales of $16 billion, it has been steadily increasing in recent years. Thus far, the industry has shown itself able to withstand assaults on its markets by competitive materials and to create many new markets. However, increased emphasis on market and product research is required if the industry is to continue to prosper.

During 1964 and 1965, some firming of prices, higher operating rates, improved processes, and operating efficiences resulted in significant growth in paper industry earnings. Of equal importance, the expected rate of return on stockholders investment in 1965 at 9.7 per cent will be the best in a decade.

The expanding economy of 1966 should favor continued growth of sales and earnings for the pulp, paper, and paperboard industry.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Our 8-year-old son is left-handed. My wife is trying to change him over. She insists it is an unnecessary handicap for a person to go through life left-handed, and that it's all a matter of breaking the habit.

Last night my wife strapped Jack's left hand to his side with a belt and made him feed himself with his right hand. He dropped most of his food on the tablecloth and the floor and his younger sister laughed at him. He got so mad he cried. We had a fuss at the table and I finally told my wife in plain language to leave the boy alone.

My wife says if we don't keep at the boy and make him do things right-handed, he will have a problem all of his life. What do you know about this subject?--BATTLE WEARY

Dear Weary: I know of some mothers whose left-handed sons did just fine. To name a few, there's Mrs. Koufax's son, Sandy; Mrs. Ruth's son, Babe; Mrs. da Vinci's son, Leonardo, and Mrs. Mauldin's son, Bill. Insist that your wife leave the boy alone before she makes a nervous wreck of him.

Dear Ann Landers: Please print my letter for the woman who signed herself "Nothing Withheld." She felt that her husband owed it to her to spell out every detail about his relationship with the woman he went with before they married.

I was the same way. I nagged all the intimate details out of my husband and now I'm so miserable I don't know what to do. Whenever he whispers some little love phrase in my ear I wonder if he said the same things to her. When he holds me in his arms I can't help but think that he is such a wonderful lover because he has had so much practice.

The ghost of my husband's former sweetheart haunts me. Now I wish I had kept my nose out of his past and not been so inquisitive. Please tell all girls who want to pump a man for information of this kind that they are better off not knowing. --IGNORANCE IS BLISS

Dear Ig: I DID tell'em but you told'em even better. A testimonial from one who has been there is always more effective. Thanks for giving me a grand assist.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I married a widower with three children. We are very happy. His three children (college age) have had some bitter arguments among themselves as to who gets what pieces of furniture and the personal possessions of their mother. (She died two years ago.) The most fought over item is a beautiful diamond wedding ring which their mother had reset just before she died. All the children want it.

I am writing to ask what you think should be done with the ring. My husband and I are not flush with money and he feels that it would sensible to sell the ring and put the money to some good use. He is afraid, however, that his children may feel that he is not paying their mother the proper respect. He says they are quite sentimental. What do you say?--SIDELINES

Dear Sidelines: These kids sound as sentimental as a collection of water moccasins.

If there were only one child I would say the ring should be given to the child, but since there are several, and "they all want it" the best solution is the one your husband has suggested. So long as the suggestion is HIS and not yours, the kids have no right to criticize.

To solve some of the frustrations, disappointments and disillusionments of married life, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

GOP Confident of Boost in Stock

Editor's Note: Next year is an election year and the Viet Nam War is bound to loom large in the political consciousness. Already there are sounds of issues being hammered together. This last of four articles on America's role in Viet Nam reports on its impact on the political front.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republicans will bound back to Washington this month confident that President Johnson faces decisions on Viet Nam and the economy which are likely to boost the GOP's political stock.

As Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and House Minority Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan see it, Johnson must make the difficult choice between inflation or a slowdown in his Great Society programs if he is to provide the substantial increase in Viet Nam spending even the administration regards as inevitable.

There have been estimates that the rising costs of the Southeast Asia conflict may add $10 billion to the military budget in a year.

Curiously, that is exactly the amount the politically powerful AFL-CIO wants the President to put into education, from elementary schools to college, in the same period of time. This represents only one source of the tremendous pressures that will be brought on Johnson to keep various programs rolling in high gear.

"As I see it," Ford said, "The President has the alternative of cutting back on his domestic programs, raising taxes or rolling up a big inflationary budget."

"He certainly isn't going to recommend raising taxes. If he backs down on the programs he pushed so hard to get in the last session, he is going to undercut a lot of Democratic candidates who are depending on them for election. If he yields to inflation, he is going to hear from the country in no uncertain terms."

Dirksen said in a separate interview he looks for an administration effort to crowd into this fiscal year, which ends next June 30, as much supplemental spending as possible. This would tend to hold down the total of the new budget to be submitted in January.

"There will be stiff opposition to any such deceptive practice," he said.

Administration officials already have estimated that current year spending will run between $105 and $107 billion, instead of the $99.7 billion estimated last January. Because revenues are up, they figure the June 30 deficit will range between $7 and $8 billion.

Republicans believe the psychological impact of a new January budget estimate of more than $100 billion in spending will dramatize their contention that Johnson is taking the country into an era of inflation.

If this is followed by increases in the prices of food, appliances, automobiles, services and all of the things the average family buys they believe disgruntled consumers will take it out on the Democrats at the polls in the congressional races next November.

They emphasize any cutbacks, Johnson might make in domestic aid programs, the Republican policy coordinating committee expects to have a report soon on the impact on such programs of increased Viet Nam expenditures. This presumably will spell out for the beneficiaries just what they aren't going to get if Johnson clamps down to make way for war expenditures.

Because they didn't want to be accused of displaying American disunity abroad, the Republicans on the whole have been strained in criticizing Johnson's course in Viet Nam. They apparently have developed now a technique of urging the President on to greater military efforts and in the same voice criticizing him for getting involved in an "endless" war. While they say they don't quarrel with Johnson's objectives, they complain that he isn't getting anywhere.

In this, the Republicans are firing at the most vulnerable point in Johnson's political defense, the accelerating commitment of U.S. manpower to jungle warfare. As American casualty lists mount, the President's problem of maintaining broad national support for his actions seems likely to become more acute.

The GOP committee has offered as its alternatives a naval and air quarantine of North Viet Nam, supplemented by air and sea bombardment of "significant military targets," Dirksen said military leaders ought to pick the targets, a task that Johnson has taken over personally in the past.

Ford argued that if the quarantine -- bombing strategy were carried out, the need for ground forces could be reduced. But he and other Republican leaders avoided saying what they thought might happen if U.S. warships halted Soviet supply vessels bound for Haiphong, North Viet Nam's chief port.

Dirksen, who has stood behind Johnson, indicated, that he, too, is becoming more critical as the election year approaches.

"We don't quarrel about being in Viet Nam," he said. "But we have a quarrel because we have been there too long without decisive results."

This obviously was aimed at capitalizing on the impatience of the average American, who wants to get a nasty job over with.

The Republicans feel perfectly free to make almost any kind of suggestion since they know they aren't going to be called upon to demonstrate that they could do a better job than Johnson in running the war.

It's the President who will get the blame if the U.S. position in Viet Nam doesn't improve by election time. While the voters never turn out a president in a war, they sometimes take out their annoyances on the candidates of his party.

White House Wit

John Quincy Adams
President, 1825-1829

On a trip to England, John Quincy Adams made this notation in his diary:

"There is something so fascinating in the women I meet within this country, that it is well for me I am obliged immediately to leave it."

A June 19, 1828, entry in John Quincy Adam's diary:

"The wife of Willis Anderson came again to petition for his pardon. She hinted that her husband did not wish to be discharged from prison himself, and that it would be no relaxation of his punishment to turn him over to her."

Mary Tyler Moore Pinup Queen of Troop

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Dear Miss Moore, I saw your picture in Stars and Stripes, and I enjoyed it. When I was back home, my wife used to say you had skinny legs. I didn't think so, and I'm glad to find out I was right. Would you please send me a photograph?"

The message was typical among the hundreds of letters Mary Tyler Moore has been receiving from GI's in Viet Nam. What started as a publicity stunt is shaping up as a full-scale move to make her a pinup queen of the Asian war.

Miss Moore spends her professional life as the fully clothed wife on "The Dick Van Dyke Snow." But she is also an accomplished dancer and beneath those frocks and aprons is a whistle-worthy form.

Alert press agents, realizing this, proposed that Mary pose for some cheesecake photos that could be sent to interested servicemen in Viet Nam. A dozen photographers were invited to a snapping session, competing to produce the most attractive pose.

A photograph of the photographers at work appeared in the overseas service newspaper, Stars and Stripes. That prompted the letters.

"It happened so suddenly that I haven't been able to get the photos yet," said Mary during a break in TV filming. "But I've beeen answering all the letters, turning out 25 to 50 a day in every moment I can spare. I'm getting writer's cramp but enjoying it.

"Some of the letters come with 20 signatures, so the work mounts up. But it's a very small thing that I can do, compared to what they're doing over there."

In the photograph that Mary will be sending, she wears a form-fitting dancer's costume slit down the front. Only the legs are exposed. But then, Betty Grable did all right in another war.

Mary Tyler Moore will soon be shedding her housewifely role with the Van Dyke show and heading for other pursuits. The series will end after this season, not for the usual reason of poor ratings. It continues among the CBS leads.

But Van Dyke has a logjam of film commitments, as does producer-creater Carl Reiner. Mary told her plans:

"I'll go to Universal to start the first of 10 pictures. Or, if it's a bomb, the first of one. They have the options."

DR. BURNELL W. KINGREY, dean of the school of veterinary medicine at the University of Missouri in Columbia, inspects a microscope in one of the new modern laboratories built as an additon to Connaway hall. In the background are two laboratory technicians, Mrs. Marilyn Snell of Columbia and Mrs. Mildred Floyd of New Franklin.

School of Veterinary Medicine Shows Growth

COLUMBIA, Mo., -- Located off the beaten path in the southeast extremity of the campus is a division that to students perhaps is the least well known of the University of Missouri schools but whose impact is growing in importance not only to the campus but to the economy of the state.

The school of veterinary medicine which Dr. Burnell W. Kingrey heads as dean has graduated 440 men and three women since the first class took degrees in 1950. It is one of only 18 schools in the nation offering degrees of Doctor of Veterinary Medicine.

The school was established in 1946 on orders of the Missouri General Assembly, which by now is beginning to realize what a bargain it obtained. Capital costs for the most part are represented in the new $1 million clinic and less than $500,000 spent in enlarging the half-century old Connaway Hall in which is located administrative offices as well as laboratories and classrooms. Few new schools of veterinary medicine are under consideration in the nation because of an estimated $18 million such as installation would cost.

Demand for veterinarians is growing over the nation from industry, armed services, U.S. Department of Agriculture, research organizations, educational institutions and need for general practitioners. An indication is shown in Missouri where some 30 percent of the new veterinarians licensed in the state are graduates of schools from other states.

Demand for veterinarians, and of students to enroll in the six-year course, led the University to double the size of its entering class, from 30 to 60, this year. Within four years when the school could have a total enrollment of 240 students, laboratories, classrooms and clinic will be jampacked, but the operation is programmed to be conducted in existing space. The entering classes can't be enlarged further, however, without a significant building program.

The school is quite well known to practicing veterinarians and to livestock men over the state. To the clinic are sent animals referred by Missouri veterinarians for diagnosis and treatment by specialists with specialized equipment. Essentially the school accepts everything offered in the way of clinical material, and it generally works out that only the most difficult cases--those with which practicing veterinarians need help--are sent to the clinic. Clinical material currently is in abundance and is increasing every year, but more may be needed when research and graduate training programs are expanding. Farm animals and such domestic animals as dogs and cats are sent to the clinic, but an eagle, lion and salamander are among the more exotic species which have required treatment.

One method of measuring the effectiveness of a school is in its research, particularly if the studies seem significant enough to attract financial support from outside sources.

In that respect, the Missouri school is meeting the test. Its location on the campus of the University contributes to effectiveness of research because of the School of Medicine and the College of Agriculture and their interrelations with the School of Veterinary Medicine in seeking solution to problems of mutual interest.

The dairy husbandry, animal husbandry and poultry husbandry departments in the agricultural division share interest in veterinary research. So, too, does the medical school where cooperative research on the zoonooses -- diseases transmissable from animal to man, of which rabies is perhaps the best known--and environmental health is under way. Cancer, comparative medicine, water pollution, poisoning by plants and chemicals are under study. In the near future adventure into the unknown will become possible with entry of the nuclear research reactor into the campus research program.

Among the recent research grants received by Veterinary Medical faculty members:

Dr. Robert C. McClure, professor of veterinary anatomy, a grant of $29,784 from the Public Health Service, for research conducted cooperatively with the School of Dentistry at the University of Missouri at Kansas City on the effects of antibiotics on tooth development; Dr. Lloyd E. Davis, professor of veterinary physiology and pharmacology, a grant of $43,085 from the Public Health Service for a comparative study of metabolism of drugs in a variety of domestic animals; Dr. Donald C. Blenden, professor of community health and medical practice, on a $6,000 Public Health Service grant for studies on environmental effect coincident with congenital abnormalities; Dr. Donald E. Weinman, associate professor of veterinary physiology and pharmacology, and Dr. John R. Campbell, associate professor of dairy husbandry, $4,650 from Diamond Laboratories of Des Moines, Ia., for studies on comparative values of injected minerals and vitamins; Dean Kingrey, a grant from the Public Health Service, one of two made to perfect a clinical record system in which an attempt to standardize, through use of the same terminology in diagnoses, will be made; Dr. R. B. Wescott, associate professor of microbiology, $1,500 by Chemargo Corp., of Kansas City, for studies of parasite control in cats through drugs.

Several projects are under way on infectious and noninfectious illness of domestic livestock; Dr. Blenden is winding up a six-year $100,000 project financed by the Public Health Service, on lextospirosis, a fever producing illness in which swimming pools and slow moving water areas are involved; on equine encepholomelitis, a virus disease of the brain spread by mosquitos; and a laboratory animal medicine study that involves newborn by Cesarean operations being raised in disease-free environments for study of treatment of diseases.

Among new studies will be one on aging animals. Little is known about diseases of the aged in so far as slaughter animals are concerned; their life expectancy isn't great!

Another field will be opened when space sciences laboratories are completed on the campus.

Research of interest to the general public, of course, is in the field of cancer. Veterinarians have known for years that viruses can produce leukemia in animals and have identified strains -- one of the fields in which animal scientists appear to lead the medical field. The University Veterinary School has four researchers working on cancer control, one on identification of viruses that produce it, and the cancer research program is growing.

Malden Keeps Busy

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Karl Malden was explaining why he goes to universities around the country to conduct drama seminars without pay:

"My father used to ask me, 'What did you do today?' If I said 'Nothing,' he'd always tell me, 'That day will never come back; you've wasted it.' "

His father's words returned to Malden during the inevitable lapses between movies. The Oscar winner ("A Streetcar Named Desire," 1951) is one of Hollywood's busiest actors; this year he performed in three important films, "The Cincinnati Kid," "Bullwhip Griffin," "Nevada Smith."

But every film actor experiences idle periods between pictures. At such times, Malden admitted, "I'm bored stiff."

He is a graduate of the Actor's Studio and hence believes in continuous study of his craft. But such is not possible in Hollywood, he declared, even though acting workshops have been attempted from time to time.

"Everything is too commercial here," said Malden. "Actors don't join classes just to polish up their skills. They join with the idea that 'maybe if I do some scenes with Malden, he will recommend me for his next picture.'

"In college communities it's different. Students are in classes for what they can learn."

So he went back to college. As Malden Sekulovich of Gary, Ind., he didn't get very far at Arkansas State Teachers College. He chucked an athletic scholarship for a career in the theater. His return to the campus life was occasioned by an invitation from an old friend who teaches dramatics at Eastern New Mexico University.

Word got around the academic community that Malden was available. He also accepted invitations from Kansas State Teachers and Indiana University. Now he has eight future dates, including Denver, San Jose State, Northwestern and Midland, Neb.

"I accept the dates with the proviso that I can leave if a movie job should come up," the actor explained. "For that reason I don't want to be paid.

"After I was at Kansas, the university sent me a check for a thousand dollars. I sent it back with the suggestion that they might convert it into a Karl Malden scholarship fund, if they wanted to. That was done, and now worthy dramatic students are given a hundred dollars a semester."

Malden's plan is to visit each campus for a three-week period. He lives and eats among the students and reports that after the first few days he is accepted as part of the local scene.

"I specify that I want to work with advanced acting classes, no more than 20 to 25 in each session," he said. "Most of the time we do scenes and improvise. The instructor can remain in the class if he wants. But he has to get up and make a fool of himself, just as we do."

Malden, who has a daughter at the University of Oregon, said his collegiate experiences send him back to Hollywood refreshed. How does his wife feel about these absences?

"She approves," he grinned. "She knows what a miserable person I can be when I'm not working."

Odd Talent Merger

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "It should be an interesting experience," said Marlon Brando, an expression of doubt appearing on his classic features.

The actor was speaking of his next film venture, "The Countess from Hong Kong." It promises to be one of the most noteworthy of recent movies, inasmuch as he will costar with Sophia Loren and both will be directed by Charlie Chaplin.

The odd combination of talents has caused wonderment in the film world, and the feeling is shared by Brando.

Has the script been written?

"Well, yes," said Brando hesitantly. "That is, he sent me one. But then he sent a message later telling me to disregard the previous script as he was writing an entirely new one."

Why is Brando doing the film?

"Because Chaplin asked me," he explained. "When a man of his stature in the industry writes a script for you, you can hardly refuse. Why he should think of me for a comedy, I haven't the faintest idea. But he said I was the only one who could play it."

Brando added with a grin: "I and Sean Connery, I guess. I understand Chaplain also had Connery on the hook, in case I didn't come through."

The deal for "The Countess from Hong Kong" resulted from the labors of Jay Kanter, longtime Brando agent and friend. Now a top executive of MCA, parent of Universal Pictures, Kanter recently assumed control of the company's European filming. He sounded out Chaplin, who disclosed he had been writing a new comedy for two years.

Kanter arranged a summit meeting between Brando and Chaplin in London.

It was the first time Brando had met the comedy master, and they apparently got along well. Brando has met his costar, Miss Loren, only briefly at a long-ago Hollywood event.

The actor seemed a bit mystified by the whole project. I asked if he could briefly summarize the plot.

"No," he replied.

"I play an American, a man from an aristocratic family, well-dressed but wan, tired — not jaded, but archly bemused by the world at large. He is married and is trying for an important government post, an ambassadorship. No, maybe it's secretary of state.

"The appointment comes through, but he gets himself involved with a woman, a white Russian. She stows away in his cabin on an ocean liner, and he spends most of the time trying to keep her hidden."

World Price Hassle

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK -- The hassle over metal prices is worldwide, not just a private quarrel between the U. S. government and the producers of steel, copper and aluminum.

Prices of copper are soaring on world markets, ignoring the rollback which Washington got from domestic firms that tried to raise theirs.

The price of American-produced copper stays at 36 cents a pound. But foreign producers have boosted the price on the world market to 42 cents. And in London metal dealers were asking 71⅞ cents a pound for spot delivery Tuesday and 68⅝ cents for delivery three months from now -- both record high quotations. The dealers could ask that because a worldwide shortage makes quickly needed copper hard for manufacturers to find.

In both London and Singapore the price of spot tin advanced again Tuesday. Shortages here, too, have sent prices soaring in recent weeks.

The move of three American makers of structural steel to raise its price brought quick retaliation from Washington. But it caused just about as much interest abroad, where steel mills have been finding the American market ever more accessible. U. S. imports of steel rose sharply in 1965. Still higher prices here might give European and Japanese mills even more of a foothold in the booming American market.

And both at home and abroad the makers of materials that can compete with structural steel in the big construction boom foreseen for 1966 are assessing what opportunities a price rise in steel would afford them to expand the markets for steel substitutes.

The three U. S. companies raising prices were: Bethlehem Steel with around 40 per cent of the industry's capacity to produce structural steel; Inland Steel with around 10 per cent; and Colorado Fuel and Iron with about 4 per cent.

To fight the price hike announcement, the U. S. government ordered its purchasing agents for defense and civilian projects to buy their steel from companies holding to the old and lower price. The government buys about one-fourth of the structural steel produced. Last year about 12 per cent of such steel used in the United States was imported.

Just as watchful as Washington were the makers of cement, prestressed and reinforced concrete, since their products have been giving steel competition in the building field. Copper, aluminum, glass and plastics also have invaded many steel markets, although few that structural steel calls its own.

Aluminum producers also had a run-in with Washington when they tried to raise the basic price of their metal, citing rising production costs and a growing world demand. But the government had a huge stockpile of aluminum built up as defense measure. And talk of releasing tons of aluminum from the stockpile sent American producers scurrying to rescind the price rise.

Even so, producers of aluminum products have since said that the steadily rising world demand for the metal is likely to see future price increases in aluminum end-products here, even if the basic metal is unchanged.

The problem of holding down price increases at home is complicated by the stresses of this domestic economy -- it is made doubly difficult by the worldwide shortages of some metals and rising demand for them.

KANSAS CITY AP -- Atty. Gen. Norman H. Anderson urged all citizens today to actively support the legislative redistricting amendment to be voted on at the Jan. 14 special election.

He called it "the only reasonable solution at this time to the problem of reapportionment and still allow the citizens of this state to have a voice in the selection of their house of representative districts."

Anderson's plea was made in a speech prepared for a meeting of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce.

He said the Jan. 14 special election "could very possibly be the most important election to be held in this state in recent years."

He warned that voters will not be deciding for or against reapportionment because the federal court determined that a year ago when it found Missouri's Legislature to be malapportioned and ordered redistricting on a one man-one vote basis.

If Amendment No. 3 is defeated, Anderson said the only alternatives are that the federal court would reapportion the House or that House candidates would have to run at large.

Such an election, he said "could be catastrophic" because there might be 2,000 to 3,000 names on the ballot and no voter could make an intelligent selection for the 163 House seats.

Here and There

Havana Swings to Taboo Tunes

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Havana teen-agers swing to the black market rock 'n' roll records, says a 14-year-old airlift refugee.

Such music, frowned on by Cuba's Communist government, sometimes costs as much as $40 per album, the youth said. Records are smuggled into Cuba, he added. The boy declined use of his name.

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A retired automobile executive and his wife, who met while attending Goshen Ind. College in the 1920s, have given the college a million dollars to build a new library.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Good of East Lansing made the donation to a fund-raising campaign started by the college last year for $3.5 million in proposed expansion moves.

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — There were at least 1,086 traffic deaths in New Jersey last year, the highest total in 28 years. The State Motor Vehicle Division says the final toll will be announced in three weeks. The 1965 toll was the highest since 1,278 were killed in 1937. The record 1,302 toll was set in 1931.

BOSTON (AP) — Gov. John A. Volpe has signed a bill authorizing Massachusetts to contribute $250,000 to continue longhaul commuter service of the New Haven Railroad.

Connecticut has contributed $950,000 and Rhode Island $500,000 to preserve the railthrough June 30. The service to be subsidized links Boston and New York via Providence, R. I., and New Haven, Conn., and a line between Springfield and New York via Hartford and New Haven.

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's largest medical research building-a $15-million, 20-story structure — has been dedicated by Columbia University.

The laboratory is named for restaurant chain executive William Black, a Columbia alumnus of the class of 1920. His $5-million gift was the largest amount received by the university from a living person in its 211-year history.

BOSTON (AP) — Scholarship awards to 655 Massachusetts students studying medicine, dentistry, and nursing have been announced by Gov. John A. Volpe. recipients must be needy, academically qualified, and have lived in the state for four years prior to the award. The grants are for the current school year.

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Gov. John H. Reed has proposed a four-point legislative program to stop what he called "the senseless slaughter on our highways."

He said he would ask the special Maine legislative session convening Jan. 17 to: Approve the addition of 20 troopers to the 259-man state police force; enact a new driver license control system; appropriate $14,700 for continuation of the state's driver improvement program.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Rep. Robert E. Sweeney, whose Ohio Congress at-large seat is to be abolished by congressional redistricting, says he will seek the Democratic nomination for state attorney general in the May primary.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The Methodist Church Board of Education says Methodists are giving more money for higher education but that rising costs make increased church support essential.

The report says current support is inadequate "in this day of unprecedented demands and rising costs" even though Methodists give more money to education than to any other effort. The report said church members gave more than $18.3 million to education.

World in 1965 Goes To Printer

Our big history book of the year, "The World in 1965," has gone to the printers and will be ready for you early in February.

It's the second notable issue prepared for this and 400 other member newspapers by The Associated Press, the world's foremost news-gathering organization. The 1964 editor, a best seller with nearly 100,000 already distributed, also still is available.

Not just another almanac filled with routine facts and tables, "The World in 1965" recreates the events of the year as no other book does.

A big book, 10½-12½ inches in size and 288 pages thick, it's bound handsomely in hard covers, and contains three dozen plates in full color, hundreds of dramatic news pictures, and scores of in-depth articles on the year's outstanding events. Lesser happenings are covered also. The authors are some of the best-known byline writers in The AP, including many who covered the events described.

It's an indispensable book for students and teachers, and also for anyone with an intelligent interest in the pageant of current history. It's an ideal layaway gift for any child who was born during the year. And bibliophiles who want a complete set of this series surely will want to order now while the books are still available.

This is all the more true since the cost amounts to only $3,- about one-third of what you would ordinarily expect to pay for a volume of this size and quality.

You can place your order now by sending a check for $3 for each copy desired to "The World in 1965," Daily Sikeston Standard, Box 66, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Missouri Citizens Can Use Tax Table

ST. LOUIS -- Taxpayers in Missouri may use a state sales tax table as a guideline when preparing their 1965 federal income tax returns.

For the first time since it was introduced in 1960, the table has been printed in the tax instructions which are mailed to taxpayers. District Director, E. O. Bookwalter of the St. Louis District of Internal Revenue said.

The table is based on a 1960-61 study of consumer spending patterns by the bureau of labor statistics and shows the average amount of state sales tax paid by Missouri residents.

The table may be used by taxpayers who itemize their federal income tax deductions.

The table omits the state sales tax on automobiles purchased. Taxpayers who purchase an automobile may add the sales tax paid on the purchase to the amount shown in the table.

District Director Bookwalter reminded taxpayers that they are not required to use the table.

The table is furnished as a guide for the convenience of taxpayers who itemize deductions on their federal income tax returns but who wish to use a standard amount for state sales tax which will not require detailed substantiation. Taxpayers have the choice, of course, of deducting the actual amount of state sales taxes paid.

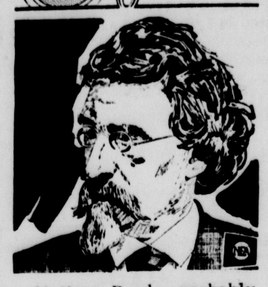
Matter of Fact



Mathew Brady, probably the best-known photographer in U.S. history, died alone and forgotten in an alms ward in a New York City hospital. Until the Civil War began he specialized in photographing famous persons, especially presidents of the United States. But in covering the Civil War in all its phases he spent his entire fortune of $100,000 and went bankrupt. Some years later Congress voted him a payment of $25,000 but he was already financially ruined.

Stuart Symington Reports from Washington

(Editor's note: Senator Symington's letter, reprinted below, was written by the Senator from Hong Kong on December 28 as a longhand personal note to his administrative assistant, Stanley Fike, of Independence, Missouri, a former Missouri newspaperman. Fike thought all readers of this column would be interested in the Senator's personal report on his visit with Missouri Servicemen at Cape Casey, Korea.

(The day after writing the letter from Hong Kong, Senator Symington arrived in Saigon, South Viet Nam, where he delivered a message to Bob Hope, his long time friend, from President Johnson. Symington called his office from Saigon at 8:55 Thursday night Viet Nam time, 8:55 Thursday morning Washington, D. C. time. Fike said reception was excellent as though the Senator were calling from Washington or Missouri.

(Symington spent seven days in South Viet Nam, leaving there January 4, for conferences with American representatives in Thailand, Egypt, Turkey, Italy, Germany, France and England before returning to Washington about the middle of January. By the time he returns, he will have visited all countries where there are major U. S. military detachments with the exception of the Dominican Republic. Symington is making the trip as a ranking member of the Senate Armed Services Committee.)

Hong Kong, December 28, 1965
Dear Stan:

Alaska, Japan, Thailand, Phillipines, Guam, Hawaii, Japan, Korea, Okinawa, Taiwan, Hong Kong. Today we leave for South Viet Nam.

A bit tiring, but thrilling and most informative.

High up in the sub-zero weather of the mountains of South Korea, so close to the North Korean Communist border that not even the commanding general is allowed to have any of his family, is Camp Casey, center camp of the 7th division.

On Christmas Eve, General Johnson arranged to have me have dinner with several dozen young Missourians of that division.

Colonel P. C. Hough of Independence, Mo., asked Sp/4 Pasco Walker to say grace. He was a fine looking young one, and enclosed is his prayer, which he wrote himself, and gave me when I asked for it. A Floridian, Negro incidentally, I wish we had him in Missouri.

So I thought I would share, with you all, these beautiful thoughts, written by a homesick boy serving his country, the finest Christmas present I ever expect to receive.

Happy New Year to everybody.

Stuart Symington

"Lord make us an instrument of thy peace, that where there is hatred, we may bring love, that where there is wrong, we may bring the spirit of forgiveness. Give us this Christmas Eve some share in the grace of Jesus Christ. Let obligation be changed to opportunity, and duty done with joy. We ask a special prayer for all the men in Vietnam. Help them, guide them and protect them from all the evil walks of life. Give our hands strength, not to do great things, but to do all that we can well. Heal the wounds of misunderstanding, jealousy, or regret, that scar our hearts and let the more gentle air of the Christmas spirit touch our lives. Heavenly Father we are indeed grateful that Senator Symington is with us, bless all the good deeds he is doing for the men and women of the world. Make his stay here an enjoyable one, and make his journey a safe one. As the old year draws to an end and the New Year beckons, grant us peace in the world, and peace in our own hearts. Bless our parents, our families, friends and gracious Lord bless us for what the body is about to receive, bless our bodies and feed our soul from time to time for Christ's sake, these blessings we ask in Jesus' name.

Amen."

The term "buccaneer" originated in Haiti, where early settlers used a process called "buccan"—smoking and drying—for preserving their meat and pirates used this method to stock their ships for long voyages.

Today In U. S. History

Today is Thursday, Jan. 6, the sixth day of 1966. There are 359 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1936, the Supreme Court ruled the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1933 was unconstitutional.

On this date

In 1814, the British ship Bramble appeared at Annapolis, Md., under a flag of truce, carrying peace offers.

In 1912, New Mexico, the 47th state, was admitted into the Union.

In 1919, former President Theodore Roosevelt died.

In 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt announced his Four Freedoms principles in a message to Congress.

In 1945, President Roosevelt called for a national service act on his State of the Union message.

Ten years ago--The Ford Motor Co., disclosed that in 1955 it had a record payroll of more than $1 billion with average wages of hourly employes $106.68 a week.

Five years ago--Twenty persons died in a fire in the five-story Thomas Hotel in San Francisco.

One year ago -- The Defense Department disclosed that four years of involvement in the war in Viet Nam had cost the U.S. armed forces 356 dead, 1,546 wounded and 19 missing.

Masons Will Install Officers

BELL CITY -- The Masonic lodge will install officers at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at the Masonic Temple.

Cleatus Henson, retiring master, will preside during the opening of the installation.

William H. DeVault, a former faculty member of the Bell City high school and now a teacher in Jackson high school, will speak.

Installing officers will be James DeLay and the Rev. Harold O. Norton, both of Bell City and E. Ralph Williams and Harry Southerland, both of Charleston.

The new officers are Ronnie Weeks, senior warden; Otto Lape, junior warden; W. Max Bollinger, treasurer; Frank Gilles, secretary; Darrell DeLay, senior deacon; J. D. Phelps, junior deacon; Joe Rampley, worshipful master; Raymond Stovall, senior steward; Leamond Tropf, junior steward; Bob Northcutt, chaplain; Elmer Calliotte, marshall and Cleatus Henson, tiler.

BRICK BUSTER — It's all in knowing how. Or so say karate experts such as Peter Siringano, here cleaving two bricks with one blow of the hand. Siringano, participating in the 1965 All-American Open Karate Championship at New York's Hunter College, specializes in a form of the art known as Shito Ryu.

Terrorists Strike in Saigon

Eleven Killed In Fire

ST. PAUL, Minn. AP -- Fire spreading with explosive force swept an old four-story downtown hotel-apartment early today, killing 11 persons and injuring 16 others.

Some occupants fled the Carleton Hotel with their clothing afire. Others jumped from upper floors and were badly hurt.

"It was a screaming mass when we got there," said Asst. Fire Chief William Maurer. "Three persons were actually afire. They met Firemen at the door."

Firemen poured water on victims to extinguish the flames.

"Some jumped while the men were putting up the ladders to rescue them," Maurer said.

A lot of screaming people jumped from second and third floors. Some landed on the sidewalk. One man broke his back.

Maurer said nine bodies were removed from the ice-coated ruins. The Red Cross said two others died in hospitals of injuries.

Waives in Traffic Case

NEW MADRID -- Only one felony case was heard this week in magistrate court. Nearly 40 persons appeared before Judge Erie Wright of Portageville as activity in the court returned to normal.

Robert Carl Lacy, charged with leaving the scene of an accident, waived his preliminary hearing before Judge Wright and was remanded to circuit court for trial with his bond set at $500.

Multiple-court traffic violation fines were levied against three persons: Hattie Mae Roach, $40 for careless and reckless driving and no operator's license; Argentry Hughes, $125 for driving while intoxicated and unlicensed operator (Hughes was also sentenced to six months in jail then placed on probation for one year); and Lurlene Robinson, $16 for improper registration of a motor vehicle and unlicensed operator.

Nettie Mae Polk, Thomas Jackson, and Thomas Armstrong paid a total of $172 for possession of non-intoxicating beer.

Sammy D. Pearson, charged with non-support, paid court costs of $20 and was ordered to pay $25 per month support.

Andy Hopper and Alfred Burton, paid a total of $30 for disturbing the peace.

Eight persons were fined for exceeding legal speed limits: Dewey L. Young, $20, Danny Wayne Lape, $15, Hershell Smothers, Edward Davis, John Frederick Schultz, William O. Boone, Shirley V. Capps, and Sharon J. Carr, $25 each.

Carless and imprudent driving brought fines to eight: Paul W. McClure and Glen L. Deal, $25 each, Houston Murphy and William Thomas Johnson, $15 each, Everett F. Hoggatt and Lawrence E. Ray, $35 each, Marvin C. Riggs, $45, and Mary Honeycutt, $20.

Nathan Nesbitt paid $35 and Willie Heath and Clarence Booker $15 each for careless and reckless driving.

Viking Freight Company was fined $110 on each of two counts of no Missouri PSC sticker; Pic Walsh paid $110 for the same offense and $11 for no state license.

Others fined were Emanuel Jones, $15, improper parking; Ira Anderson, $35, defective brakes; Beafurt Johnson, $25, permit unauthorized person to drive; Willie C. Duncan, $15, no operator's license; and James E. Wheatley and Joel Lee Haddock, $11 each, no vehicle brakes.

Wright Freed On Bond in Tavern Death

CHARLESTON -- Luther F. "Sunny" Wright, 47, farm laborer, has been released from jail on $10,000 bond and his preliminary hearing has been set for Feb. 16, in the fatal shooting of Edgar Bradley, 56, on Dec. 30, in Bardley's Belmont tavern. The action was taken this morning in magistrate court.

A coroner's jury Monday afternoon ruled that the death was an unjustifiable homicide.

Bradley was shot eight times by bullets from a .22 rifle and a .45 caliber pistol after an argument with Wright.

Wright reported the shooting to East Prairie police. Deputy Sheriff Jack Ivey put him in the Mississippi county jail at Charleston.

Wright had been employed by Bradley.

Sandburg 88 and Ill

FLAT ROCK, N.C. (AP) — Carl Sandburg, the poet and Lincoln biographer, marks his 88th birthday today in a sickbed. His wife thinks he'll get well and live to be 101.

"He'll pull himself out of this," said Mrs. Sandburg in an interview. "There's nothing that has ever defeated Carl. It's been a great life he's had because he knows how to make the best of things."

Mrs. Sandburg said her husband has not completely recovered from an intestinal inflammation which started in September. He was also shaken by a fall recently.

For years, Sandburg has predicted he would die at an age divisible by 11.

"It's inevitable, it's inexorable, it's written in the book of fate," the poet told a newsmen when he turned 80. "I had two great-grandfathers and a grandfather who died in years divisible by 11. If I don't die at 88, I'll go on to 99."

But Sandburg's 82 - year - old wife, who married him 57 years ago, takes no stock in the prophesy.

"I really think he'll live to be 101," she said. "He really has to do something different, you know.

"He still drinks goat's milk. That's why he's lived so long, but I wouldn't say that's what made him a poet."

Sticky Mission

TOKYO AP -- A. U. S. Air Force plane left Tachikawa air base near Tokyo today with 72,000 sticks of chewing gum for orphans in South Viet Nam. The gum, worth $1,500, was donated by a Japanese manufacturer to the Tokyo Lions Club.

Four U.S. Soldiers Wounded

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — Viet Cong terrorists struck twice in Saigon tonight, exploding a powerful Claymore mine at the military airport's main gate and a plastic bomb at a police substation across town. Among casualties were four U.S. servicemen, slightly wounded.

One Vietnamese was killed and three were injured in this first such outbreak of the new year.

It came shortly after U.S. briefing officers reported Allied troops and planes had knocked out hidden Viet Cong installations in three widely separated areas of South Viet Nam over the preceeding 48 hours.

The Claymore mine, which can be aimed to fire hundreds of steel pellets like a shotgun, cut loose at 6:18 p.m. from the seat of a motorized passenger cycle as American servicemen were streaming out of the gate of the airport. But the cycle had been parked between a cargo truck and a large tree and the tree took most of the charge.

A Vietnamese passerby was killed. Of the Americans injured, two were Air Force men. The others were a soldier and a sailor.

The police substation in eastern Saigon was hit an hour later. A plastic charge estimated to weigh 60 pounds, flung in the street by a bicyclist, blew in a wall and collapsed the main building, also surrounded by wire. One policeman, a woman and a child were injured.

The last previous attacks in Saigon were dozens of grenade assaults on American servicemen, trucks and billets marking the fifth anniversary Dec. 20 of the Viet Cong's political agency, the national liberation front.

The U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade, pushing through the steamy swamplands west of and supplies as the Viet Cong fell back before the American paratroopers.

The paratroopers blew up the fortifications on the sixth day of the first U.S. invasion in strength of the Mekong Delta, a Communist stronghold.

Other elements of the 173rd Brigade came on what one U.S. spokesman called a Viet Cong "general store" near the marshy Plain of Reeds, a Red stronghold and infiltration route close to the Cambodian frontier.

The paratroopers captured two guards. One of them carried several ounces of gold and 11,000 piasters, possibly part of a guerrilla payroll.

As the suspension of U. S. raids on North Viet Nam continued for the 14th day, spokesmen said B52s from Guam in a raid Tuesday night 70 miles northwest of Saigon destroyed two large tunnels, a bunker, 400 yards of camouflaged trench line and a supply area.

Johnson Still Friend

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson emerged today from still another scuffle with industry without seriously smudging his credentials as a friend of businessmen.

In an apparent victory for his "let us reason together" approach to national problems, Johnson batted down a $5-a-ton price increase for structural steel. He settled Wednesday for a $2.75 boost.

The White House emphatically denied that any behind-scenes deal preceded the announcement by United States Steel Corp. of the pattern-setting compromise increase.

But everybody knew there had been feelers and soundings-out on both sides. U.S. Steel had officials in Washington testing the administration's attitude. The administration — by White House admission — had people in contact with steel producers.

Unlike President John F. Kennedy in the steel showdown of 1962, Johnson talked tough but never let the controversy reach that point of no return at which a compromise would have been impossible.

Both sides knew — throughout the five tense days after Bethlehem Steel Corp. posted its $5 increase, to be followed by Inland Steel — that Johnson would accept gladly any settlement which did no real violence to the administration's anti-inflation guidelines for wage and price adjustments.

U. S. Steel came up with the formula.

Defector Says Life in Danger

SAIGON AP -- A young Polish interpreter for the International Control Commission told newsmen today he defected because he felt his life was in danger after he had voiced a desire to go to the United States.

Anatol Slavinski, 25, said he overheard Polish military officers discussing ways to get rid of him. He said this precipitated his defection Dec. 31.

Slavinski told a news conference his assignment to Saigon was his introduction to life in the free world. In his two months here, he said, he read many magazines and newspapers and he began thinking about defecting to the west.

Church Allocates $135, 000 to College

MARSHALL, Mo. AP -- Missouri Valley College has been allocated $135,000 by United Presbyterian Church with which it is affiliated.

LERWICK, Shetland Isles AP --All 24 crewmen of a Soviet trawler which sank in the North Atlantic today were reported rescued after an air and sea search.

Move To End Strike

NEW YORK AP--Mayor John V. Lindsay reported to New Yorkers that subway and bus strike negotiations moved ahead in "good faith" bargaining which recessed early today.

But he cautioned that the public still "must sweat it out" until settlement of the six-day-old strike.

Heavy morning rain complicated already difficult transportation problems for the city's 3.5 million workers.

The city made a new money offer during a marathon night session which broke up at 2 a.m., but the parties would not say what it was. There had been a $187-million gap in negotiating positions for a two-year labor contract covering 34,400 transit workers.

Lindsay also disclosed that he had consulted with Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz.

As he emerged from the night-time session, Lindsay said:

"There has been some movement, nevertheless the gap remains wide between them. New offers have been made."

Lindsay declined to predict if this could lead to settlement of the 6-day-old strike, but he described the new offers as "a very important move."

Rain slowed the incoming traffic today and cars were bumper - to - bumper on many major arteries.

One thing that has been contributing to the prevention of chaos in the strike has been that the morning and evening rush hours have been spread out over a longer period of time.

Traffic Commissioner Henry A. Barnes announced a plan Wednesday for staggered working hours in lower Manhattan.

The New York Stock Exchange and the American Exchange said they would close trading 90 minutes early.

One Hurt in Two-Car Crash

A two-car collision resulted in one injury yesterday at 10:12 a.m. on East Malone Avenue in front of Barkett's Big Star.

Atlas Hatley, 140 North Third, charged that G. A. Blackwater, 130 Sixth, pulled out in front of him. He was driving a 1964 Pontiac.

Blackwater, driving a 1949 Chevrolet, said that he pulled out on the highway and his motor died.

India - Pakistan Talks Continue

TASHKENT, U.S.S.R. AP -- Premier Alexei N. Kosygin held more separate talks with President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan and Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri of India today in another attempt to get their summit conference off the ground.

Kosygin met with Ayub before seeing Snastri. The two Asian leaders were tentatively scheduled to meet later. But their meeting apparently hinged on their individual talks with their Soviet host.

The Indian and Pakistani leaders were still deadlocked over Kashmir, the Himalyan state that both claim. The issue has brought war between them twice since 1947.

Fined $56

Rosco Patterson, Sikeston, was fined $56 for driving while drinking by Judge E. R. Schrader in city court.

Drainage Problems Can Be Solved

More than 50 persons at the Holiday Inn last night heard Howard Jackson, Columbia, state conservationist of the United States department of agriculture, tell drainage district leaders and members of county courts, that there is a solution to the drainage problems in the St. John's Bayou basin.

The dinner meeting was sponsored by St. John's drainage district, which consists of a land area in Scott, Mississippi and New Madrid counties. It contains 249,447 acres, and begins from the Commerce hills to New Madrid, extending from the Sikeston ridge eastward. Of the total acreage 40,000 are subject to overflow and include 512 miles of state and county roads and 186 bridges.

It was estimated a solution of the drainage problem would cost $5,680,000.

"The project would serve both rural and city communities," Jackson said.

"Federal assistance could amount to up to 50 per cent depending on the flood control problem involved."

It was pointed out by representatives of the district that there is no other resource in the area more worth conserving than the water supply by regulating the flow in adequate drainage.

The project in Mississippi county would include enlarging the Charleston ditch, cleaning out and enlarging Maple slough ditch for a total of 40 miles.

In Scott county, the project would enlarge the North Cut ditch from the county line to Commerce; Blue Ditch, and the St. James main ditch from New Madrid county line to the Benton hills, for a total of 56 miles.

The New Madrid county proposal is to enlarge North Cut ditch from the Scott county line to junction with St. John's ditch; St. John's ditch from junction of North Cut on to the gates; St. James diversion ditch for a distance of three miles to provide outlet for Mississippi county water; Dry Run ditch from gates to LaForge Road, for a total of 66 miles.

Jackson said that an effort should be made to consolidate the drainage problems "under a main authoritative body, which could study the drainage problems from an overall viewpoint."

The problem of raising funds and sharing costs also should be combined, he said, to give the "needed results over a wide area."

Other proposals are dams in the streams to control water flow during heavy rain as well as a station at New Madrid to pump excess water over the gates during high water on the Mississippi river.

"Gates now installed prevent backwater from the river flooding the farm lands inside the set-back levee.

The speaker said that there once were 32 watershed districts in Missouri and today there are 65.

"The laws of congress since 1953 have changed greatly. Prior to this time the programs were geared to the flood problems only. Now they have been amended to take in both flood control and storage of water.

"Appoint a board that has studied the whole drainage area and we will make your project effective the first six months in 1966, with the help of your state and district representatives," Jackson said.

"Before you can levy a tax you must have 56 per cent approval of the watershed residents.

"You must also know about your soils, and all engineering problems, and that the flatlands present difficult watershed problems. The plans can be worked out if all necessary information is made available."

Present at the meeting included county court officials from the three counties, Congressman Paul Jones, Kennett, State Senator Pat Patterson, and Scott County Representative Tony Heckemeyer, and state and local conservation officials.

ST. JOHN'S Bayou basin drainage officials heard a discussion of drainage problems last night at the Holiday Inn. In center is Howard Jackson, Columbia, state conservationist of the U.S. department of agriculture, holding a map outlining the three-county basin area in Scott, Mississippi and New Madrid counties. Shown from left, are members of the St. John's board, Tom Ferg Hunter, W. H. Ice, engineer; Harry Bock, attorney for the drainage district, Tom Allen, Jackson, Jess Wilkens, secretary, E. B. Gee Sr., president, Congressman Paul Jones of Kennett and State Sen. J. F. Patterson of Caruthersville.

Seven Injured in Three Area Traffic Collisions

Seven persons were injured in three traffic accidents Wednesday.

Tom Marshall, 35, was hurt three miles south of Benton on highway 61, when his 1964 Chevrolet was struck in the side, by a 1955 Pontiac, driven by Frankie Thompson, 23, Ilmo.

Thompson's car went out of control and crossed over on the wrong side of the road on wet pavement, the state patrol reported.

Marshall was taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, suffering from an injured knee, and mouth cuts. Several teeth were knocked out.

Thompson was treated by an Ilmo physician for an injured ankle.

Five persons received minor injuries at 12:05 p.m. a half mile north of the Puxico city limits, when two cars met on a hill on a country road.

A 1959 Ford driven by Geneva Gaines, 16, Puxico, and a 1960 Ford, driven by James Tanner, 42, Puxico, struck almost head-on.

Miss Gaines and her three passengers, all of Puxico -- Linda Cookson, 16, Judy King, 14, Kathy Keene, 15, all suffered minor bruises. Tanner received a cut on the chin.

Selma Tipton, 54, driving a 1948 Ford, was struck by a 1949 Chevrolet pickup truck driven by Sylvester Glastetter, 43, Ilmo, at 4:15 p.m. at the Scott City limits. She was taken to the Southeast Missouri Hospital, suffering from bruises and a possible broken arm.

Cars had stopped to make a left turn, when the Glastetter car skidded to the wrong side of the road and struck the Tipton car, the patrol said.

Klan Leader Tight Lipped

WASHINGTON AP -- Russell Magee, identified as a Ku Klux Klan leader and a supervisor in the Bogalusa, La., area schools, refused today to answer any questions about the Klan.

An investigator for the House Committee on Un-American Activities identified Magee as a former vice principal and basketball coach at Thomas High School near Bogalusa and said he now holds "a supervisory position on the local school board."

Schooner Hangs on Reef

MIAMI, Fla. AP -- A big cruise schooner with 47 persons aboard hung up on a Bahamas Islands reef today.

Coast Guard helicopters from Miami airlifted 14 persons from the 135-foot windjammer Polynesia 15 miles to Bimini, but left the others to be brought ashore by civilian boats if they wished to leave the stranded vessel.

The Polynesia was reported in no immediate danger with seas only one to two feet and weather mild. The Coast Guard said freeing her would be a commercial tugboat operation.

The Polynesia was the pride of Miami Capt. Mike Burke's "Windjammer Cruises" fleet.

It was the second such accident to befall the cruise line in the last week and the fifth in five years.

Nothing Serious About Kennedy Heart Block

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP).— Former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy's heart stopped beating for a second or two Wednesday, but his doctor says there is nothing serious about it.

"There was a brief loss of consciousness, but there are no after effects," said Dr. Saul Rotter. "He'll resume his normal activities."

The 77-year-old father of the late President John F. Kennedy collapsed in a chair just before noon after stepping out of the pool at his oceanfront winter home.

A male nurse carried him inside. Ann Gargan, longtime Kennedy companion, called the doctor and a priest.

Msgr. Jeremiah P. O'Mahoney administered final rites of the Roman Catholic Church.

Kennedy recovered from the heart block under oxygen and the doctor decided there was no need to hospitalize him.

Doctors listed him in fair condition today at his home.

Kennedy watched television, ate a normal supper and went to bed at 8 p.m.

He has been recovering slowly but surely from the stroke here Dec. 19, 1961, that left his speech and mobility impaired.

He is able to carry on a limited conversation but he is unable to move without help.

Kennedy, ambassador to Great Britain from January 1937 to late in 1940, came here several weeks ago for the winter. He swims regularly as part of a rehabilitative program.

Adopt Scorched Earth Policy

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—To break the back of the Viet Cong, U.S. and Allied forces are adopting a program of destroying houses and crops in areas which feed and shield the Communist forces.

For years, Americans refused to participate in "scorched earth" efforts, leaving them to the Vietnamese. Now Americans are directly involved. They are trying to protect innocent people.

The broad-based program includes the establishment of free-bombing zones in Viet Cong regions, killing rice crops in enemy areas, and burning other crops and homes.

The rich, intensely cultivated flat lands south of the Vaico Oriental River west of Saigon are prime "scorched earth" targets. U.S. paratroopers from the 173rd Airborne Brigade began operating there last weekend.

They laid their base camp among the blackened frames of burned houses. Within two miles of the paratroopers' camp not a house was left standing. Constant pounding by artillery and planes had reduced every building to rubble.

The paratroopers' mission was to move out farther, round up all the people they could find, evacuate them north of the river to resettlement camps, and burn and destroy everything eatable and livable.

Patrols waded in neck-deep canals slicing through the canefields, crept stealthily down high dikes, and pushed through thick brush.

Every house they encountered they burned to the ground. Most were of thatch, but some were large with heavy wooden frames and neat gardens.

Every cooking utensil was smashed, every banana tree severed, every mattress slashed.

The American paratroopers are remaining in the area, enlarging the "scorched earth" zone. They know that the Viet Cong will rebuild the razed homes when they leave, make new earthenware pots and breed new chickens.

Capt. Henry Tucker, from Columbus, Miss., said: "Maybe if we can keep them busy rebuilding their houses and replanting the crops, then they'll have no time for shooting."

New Era in Weather Forecasting

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A new era in long-range weather forecasting opens this month with the launching of the first of several satellites combining to form a full-time operational forecasting network.

Within two to three years, weathermen "will be able to advise people not to go to the beach two weeks from Sunday because it's going to rain that day," predicted an official working on the project with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

A picture - taking satellite named TOS 1, which stands for Tiros operational satellite, is scheduled for launching late this month, probably Jan. 25 or 26, as the first fully operational weather satellite.

TOS 2 is due to ride aloft about one month later.

Although more than a half-million useful pictures were received from the first 10 Tiros weather satellites, their primary function was to test telectronic systems to be used in weather monitoring by satellites.

Heart of the long-range forecasting system will be packed inside another satellite called Nimbus B, which will be launched in late 1967 or early 1968.

Sensors aboard Nimbus will record data such as the atmospheric pressure and moisture content of the air at various locations around the world. Remote unmanned stations on earth will record wind velocity on the earth's surface and relay this data to the satellite.

This information, coupled with photographs of cloud formations from two TOS satellites, "could enable weather predictions to be made two to four weeks in advance," said a spokesman for NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center.

Plans call for two TOS satellites to be in orbit at all times, with another on standby ready for launch in case an orbiting satellite breaks down or wears out.

One of the TOS satellites will be used to help weathermen on a local level. The other will send data to Goddard or U.S. Weather Bureau headquarters for worldwide forecasts, the space agency said.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Thursday, January 6, 1598, Heidelberg, Germany: Johannes Conrad Richtenstein invents the spitball.

The rising incidence of malaria in South Viet Nam may be complicated by a shortage of a centuries-old remedy--quinine.

The armed forces turned again to quinine recently when certain newly-found strains of malaria proved resistant to the synthetic drugs developed during World War II.

The Defense Department has stockpiled sufficient amounts of quinine to meet requirements for two years, based on the present rate of consumption. However, as U.S. forces expand their efforts in Viet Nam, the increased malaria casualty count could pose a serious problem unless new drugs are developed. Meanwhile, the medics are forced back to quinine, the oldest antimalarial of all.

Indicative of the zooming demand for quinine is the fact that the price of quinine has jumped more than five times over the levels of a year ago.

One factor in the growing shortage is that Indonesia, previously the world's greatest producer of quinine, has cut down most of its quinine-producing trees to make way for other crops.

Quinine was introduced to Europe by Jesuit missionaries returning from the New World. It is derived from the bark of the cinchona tree, and Indians in what is now Peru and Ecuador may have known about the bark's medicinal qualities even before the Spaniards arrived.

A person who has malaria suffers intense attacks of chills, fever, sweats, and great weakness. The attacks may recur for years.

Malaria ranks as a leading cause of death in many tropical regions of the world. Scientists estimate that about 100 million persons suffered from malaria during 1965, and that the disease will cause about 900,000 deaths this year.

Malaria is caused by one-celled parasites, protozoans of the genus Plasmodium, which burst victims' blood cells, causing anemia. The parasites are transmitted by the female Anopheles mosquito.

The French scientist Charles L. A. Laveran discovered the protozoa that causes malaria in 1880. In 1898, British scientist Sir Ronald Ross showed how mosquitoes spread the disease.

SOUR SIDE OF SOCIAL SECURITY

A deflationary jolt to the nation's economy is expected after Sunday, Jan. 1, when an increase in Social Security taxes takes effect. Workers and their employers must pump an additional $5 billion into the Social Security Trust Fund in 1966 in order to pay for higher retirement-survivor benefits and the new medicare program voted by the Congress in 1965.

Americans who earn $6,600 or more annually face a Social Security tax hike of $103.20 in the new year. This is in addition to the maximum $174 that the employee paid in 1965 on the old annual earnings base of $4,800. Take-home pay of a worker earning $6,600 will drop about $2 a week with his first pay check of 1966. The new maximum payroll tax of $277.20 will be matched dollar-for-dollar by employers.

A measure of the health of the economy will be whether the increase is taken in stride by workers and businesses, with no substantial reduction in consumption and employment respectively. Companies with large payrolls and narrow profit margins, however, may feel the need to raise prices as a means of offsetting the higher tax bite.

Wage-earners can draw some comfort from the knowledge that their bigger contributions are helping finance a 7 per cent benefit raise for more than 20 million Social Security recipients as well as making possible a new program of medical care for the aged starting next July 1. The Social Security System provides an indirect means for workers to help support aged parents and to buy basic insurance that will benefit surviving wife and children in event of disablement and death. In any event, Social Security tax increases already scheduled for the future will be much more gradual; in 1967, for example, the employer and employee each will pay only $13.20 more than in 1966.

PUBLIC RECORDS

When is a public record or document not a public record or document? When it may damage reputations. So says the Wisconsin Supreme Court in a case involving a newspaper's effort to inspect a report on alleged police brutality.

A lower court had ruled the report was public. The mayor and city attorney of Waukesha appealed contending it might damage the city or reputations of policemen. The Supreme Court reversed the ruling saying there are times when public interest would justify refusal to permit inspection.

"If the report contains statements of persons having first hand knowledge, which disclose police misconduct, the fact that reputations may be damaged would not outweigh the benefit to the public interest in obtaining inspection," the court said.

"On the other hand statements based on hearsay or suspicion, or inconclusive in nature, would be of small public benefit if made public, and might do great harm to reputations."

It seems to us that the public would get the point quickly if a report of this kind was based on hearsay, suspicion or inconclusive evidence and the police would be better off having it known rather than laboring under unrefuted allegations of brutaility. Suppression of such documents only creates suspicion that the allegations are true. Public records and documents tend to become the private papers of officials if they have to be taken to court on every occasion to obtain a ruling on the public's behalf.

SHARE WITH CARE

A recent visitor from India, a world-famed eye surgeon who has performed or supervised almost 200,000 eye operations, made a statement on the eve of his departure that should make Americans feel proud. Dr. M. C. Modi, who is reverently addressed in India as "our brother who gives us sight," said: "Thank God for the heartfelt concern for suffering humanity that CARE and MEDICO feel."

The occasion for his remark was an interview in connection with CARE's 20th anniversary year. To Dr. Modi, the overseas relief organization's work is very familiar. For CARE and one of its affiliates, Lions International, have made possible the 74-year-old surgeon's pride and joy--a well-equipped trailer which is a hospital on wheels that he and 12 assistants use to travel the countryside.

Most of the operations that fantastic Dr. Modi has performed over the past 22 years have been for cataracts. Compared to the surroundings in an average American hospital, the conditions under which he operates are frequently beyond belief. His operating room is often a classroom in a village school. The light may be furnished by a flashlight, since more Indian towns are without electricity. Even more amazing in this saga of an amazing man is that Dr. Modi has never charged any patient a fee!

The files of MEDICO, the medical arm of CARE, contain accounts of the selfless labors of U.S. and Canadian doctors and nurses who volunteer to fight disease in countries with inadequate public health personnel and facilities. It is gratifying, therefore, to get word of a unique salute paid CARE on its 20th birthday by an important American pharmaceutical manufacturer. Sterling Drug is showing how the public can participate in "Share With CARE". When we buy any one of eight leading non-prescription medicines in retail stores and advise CARE of the purchase, the company has pledged to match each purchase by donating an equal amount of medicine to CARE.

This can be a worthy means for the American people to show their "heartfelt concern for suffering humanity," to use Dr. Modi's epression.

A couple visiting New York decided to take their 12-year-old son to a hit musical for his birthday.

They began to feel a little uneasy when in the opening number a line of chorus girls appeared clad only in a scanty green and white ribbon.

As the number ended the boy leaned over and said to his mother, "Mom, did you see that?"

"Did you see what?" asked the mother apprehensively.

"Those girls," replied her son, "They're wearing our school colors."

NEW YORK AP -- Jumping to conclusions:

A second wife will forgive her husband almost anything except the fact he has to pay alimony to his first wife. She feels the money rightfully belongs to her, and would almost rather see him thrown into jail then pay it.

No magazine in America is as interesting as the latest copy of a mail order catalog.

You can tell a man's age by the number of medicines he keeps in his office desk. If there are more than two, you don't have to see him to know that he is middle-aged. If there are more than four, he's about ready for retirement — maybe overdue.

A fellow generally can borrow more money from a girl with buck teeth than one who looks like she'd posed for a dentifrice ad.

When a wife works outside the home, her husband gets no pleasure out of helping her do the dishes. He does it because he feels he owes it to her — and in life there is no joy in owing anybody anything.

If someone hadn't already invented the wastebasket, someone would have to. It is about the most useful tool in a wasteful civilization. Without it we would choke to death in our own junk.

Anyone who still regularly eats the same breakfast food he did in his childhood is an unimaginative clod. On the other hand, anyone who changes his brand of breakfast food more than once a month shows definite signs of instability and shiftiness of character.

A sure way to test the affection of your girl friend is to leave a small piece of thread on the sleeve of your coat. If she doesn't see it and pluck it off within moments, you know she's thinking more of herself than she is of you.

It doesn't take talent or genius to become well-known in this world. A fellow who pastures a hippopotamus in his front yard is bound to win attention, sooner or later.

The balder a business executive is, the less likely he is to hire an office boy with a duck-tailed haircut.

Women have never seemed quite so mysterious to men —or as alluring — since they quit wearing veils and started wearing raspberry-flavored lipstick.

No one wants the youth of our land to grow up underprivileged and burdened by undue hardships. The chances are, however, that if Abraham Lincoln had studied his lessons by a flickering television set instead of by firelight he'd later have had to enlist a ghost writer to help him turn out the Gettysburg address.

Few acts in life seem more final, or make you feel more wistful, then throwing away a Christmas tree. You always wonder if there'll be another one.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Riesel Picks Labor's Man Of The Year

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- A reporter, new to the beat, encountered the stolid Mr. Labor, George Meany, in the corridor of a San Francisco hotel not too long ago and asked the leader of some 13 million unionists what he thought of Jim Hoffa. Mr. Labor snorted, growled and made it plain that reporters just don't accost him even with questions about his acidy enemy.

Naturally the reporter was bitter and later cussed him. Most newsmen have been soured by Mr. Meany, and he reciprocates their lack of enthusiasm. So they write of him as the "aging, 71-year-old ex-plumber."

Well, I should age that way. In this column's corner George Meany, one of Manhattan's claims to real fame, is the labor man of the year -- THE MAN OF THE year, in fact.

He rates this merely because of his enemies--the underworld and the undercover world, Peking and Moscow, John Lewis, Jim Hoffa, kooks, and even some cabinet officials.

Because of arthritis, he walks with a shiny, black cane -- but the ex-high school baseball player's only weaknesses are cigars, colorful vests, golf and gin rummy. So much so that he took the train from Washington to San Francisco's AFL-CIO convention, over which he presided and at which he was elected unanimously to a sixth two-year term. And he played gin most of the way out.

The AFL-CIO president, synthesis of responsible trade unionism and labor action in this era's Mr. Labor for ever so many reasons. But primarily today he is Mr. Labor because he is the man the Communist internationals hate most, because he is the civilian who fights them most effectively on the global front, in the proletarian cities, where the workers are, and on the plantations where the peasants and the campesinos are and in the high councils of the world labor movement, where some of the Soviet's hidden allies are.

Why? What's his philosophy? It's best reflected in a conversation he had with the late John Kennedy. The President had called him in-- as so many Presidents have on critical questions -- to discuss selling wheat to the Soviets.

"I am sure you know that I do not like to sell anything to the Russians," the husky, blunt-speaking, broad-beamed, labor leader told the late President.

"I just do not like the Soviets; I don't like what they stand for. But there are two factors that appeal to me. One is food. It has always been the tradition of the American government -- the American people -- to give of everything they have to people who need food. We fed the Russians under the Hoover Commission back in 1922; and we fed them because Lenin, the Great Russian God, asked us to feed them. On that score I certainly would not object.

"There is another phase. . . This is the nation that was going to buy us. This is the nation that was going to out-produce us. This is the nation that was going to produce more articles of war and more guns and more butter and more ham and more meat etc., as Mr. Khrushchev bragged in 1959. It is a wonderful thing to know that that nation of optimists, which was going to rule the world, has to turn to a democracy and ask us to sell them wheat so they can feed their own people. . ."

It is the mark of Mr. Labor that Presidents have turned to him not for approval, not merely to "clear" with the unions, not as a courtesy, but for advice. And the Presidents will do so as long as Mr. Meany is in Washington.

Lyndon Johnson has and does. With the President, it is almost always "Mr Meany," almost in the manner in which it was "Mr. Rayburn." The "Mister" is a token of respect. Few realize that there are very few prominent men in Washington today who have been in this capital as long as have Mr. Johnson and Mr. Meany.

They go back to the thirties. They know the niceties and the roughhouse of in-fighting on the hill and the broken-field running a President must do.

A fraternity has sprung up between the two much as the comradeship between two college professors who were amongst the first to get on campus and then watch the Mr. Chips pass on.

It is an arrogant misintepretation of history to hang a man for his age--especially such a man as Mr. Meany. It is as cruel as it is know-nothingness.

As will be seen when labor really hits the Senate in a drive to repeal Fourteen B, Mr. Meany has lung power, brain power, legislative power and leads a militant labor movement.

It was Mr. Meany who launched the original Labor's League for Political Education. And today, its successor, the Committee on Political Education is powerful in a thousand cities.

It has been Mr. Meany's guidance which has kept the AFL-CIO united and strategically strong, though he has said that he, himself, has never called a strike.

Thus by coupling political power with towering industrial strength and skyrocketing financial influence, labor under Mr. Meany has achieved the world's highest wages, best working conditions and consistently the loudest voice in government policy anywhere in the world.

True, he does not run his federation for the benefit of the news media. He barks and he avoids us if possible.

True, he deliberately dulls up his conventions and High Council meetings. But none of this negates the fact that few national leaders understand as well as Mr. Meany does the need for fighting totalitarianism everywhere, as well as the need for a free labor-management fraternity for such a battle against fascism, for peace, high wages and good profits.

He is, therefore, the people's man of the year.

Since our nation gained its independence no other nation feared ours regardless of how strong our armaments was, but lo, Viet Nam has knocked this image into a "cocked hat". And apparently all the nations of the world are having to look us over once more to try to figure out the change and why.

Gramp, you usto play the stok market. Wha'ts your ida bout things now?

My opinion that McChestnut whoever he is, is doin good raisin intrust. Keep lots of'em frum gittin hurt. In 18 I had all I had in our company stock. Some companies wuz jes payin one percent dividend on the investment, others usin money frum stock sales to pay dividends. I sez to myself sez I, there is a hew on. I started sellin my stok slow like to keep frum scarin the little guys, you see when them little ones panic its heck to pay. Then I found out the big boys wuz borrowin to buy their own company stock to keep the price up. Then I got a letter frum our big boss askin why I wuz sellin stock? Had most of mine sold when the crash come in 29. Sold the last fur $30 00. A share I paid $98.00 fur. A year later the company offered to sell me the same stock at $10.75.

You see only thing keepin the wheels rollin now is confidence an everbody knows everbody owes too much. If the Fed. bank can put the brakes on widout goin in the ditch, it may save a heck of a wreck later.

H. L. Hunt Says

WHEN GOVERNMENT IS THE CUSTOMER

The Treasury of the United States is the greatest single concentration of wealth in the world today, or in all of history. This makes our federal government not only the biggest collector and spender of money there has ever been, but also the biggest business activity. Since government relies on force to collect its operating funds, there is no way to apply the objective measurement of the market to determine the economic value of anything government does.

Many informed Americans are familiar with these facts. Some are less familiar with government's role as customer. We tend to think of customers as almost entirely individuals or private businesses buying on the free market. But the federal government, having so much to spend, is also the nation's biggest single customer.

The federal government as customer is the primary support for many American businesses and, in turn, for whole communities in which such a business is the dominant economic activity and chief employer. When government is the customer on this scale, a new factor is added to the complex maze of government controls in which we all live. A new and worse maze engulfs those who must tailor their production to the bureaucratic whims and bewildering "channels" of procedure so characteristic of government in action.

Always multiplying, this strangling web of confusion and red tape chokes off true enterprise and initiative in the private companies which find the federal government to be their chief customer. Thus the cost is paid not only by the taxpayer, but by the entrepreneur who seems most favored by federal spending. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The Justice Department's crimebusters will open a grand jury investigation later this month into organized crime in Miami. They hope not only to trap some of the underworld's big birds who fly south for the winter but to determine whether Cuban Dictator Fidel Castro obtains precious U.S. dollars by rigging the largest quarter-and-dime lottery now operating in this country.

William G. Hundley, the modern Elliott Ness who heads the Justice Department's special unit on organized crime, will go to Miami personally to kick off the investigation.

He is disturbed over the fact that Castro has absolute control over the the 57-year-old Cuban National Lottery, long a favorite source of numbers for numbers racket in this country. This puts him in a position to pick the pockets of hundreds of thousands of American citizens, who wager their small change on the fall of the numbers each week in Havana.

The drawing is broadcast, supposedly live from Havana, at 1 p.m. on Saturdays. Persistent reports have reached federal authorities, however, that Castro "fixes" the lottery and relays the winning numbers in advance to his agents in the United States.

By scattering their bets discreetly from Key West to Boston, they could clean up an estimated $500,000 a week--enough to finance Communist Revolution throughout the Western Hemisphere.

CASTRO'S LOTTERY

Internal Revenue agents, who have tried to track down evidence that Castro is rigging the lottery, have uncovered enough to arouse their suspicions, but no positive proof. The Federal Grand Jury will attempt to dig deeper.

Hundley's Crimebusters are also eager to break up the crime syndicate which controls the numbers racket in Southern Florida. They have evidence that it is run by the old Cleveland mob.

One of the bosses, Morris Kleinman, now owns a home on fashionable Bay Harbor Island outside Miami.

The day-to-day operations are directed by Hyman Martin, who in his leaner days was known as "Pittsburgh Hymie" but is now more appropriately called "Fat Hymie."

He has an arrest record dating back to the Roaring 20s's when he was once picked up for highway robbery. He was convicted in 1931 of killing Cleveland Councilman William Potter. But lawyers wangled a new trial, several witnesses changed their stories, and Hymie went free.

Only a minor racketeer, Solly Hart, ever served a sentence in the famous murder case. Caught with a pistol, he went to jail for carrying a concealed weapon. He is now in Miami, too, working with his old pal, "Fat Hymie."

Meanwhile, the Miami Herald's crack crime reporter, Hank Messick, has turned over a compost pile of gangland-political connections, which will also keep the Federal Grand Jury busy.

PEACE STATISTICS

President Johnson is keeping a careful count on every conversation held and every overture made in his present peace drive. He is preparing to quote these statistics to anyone who calls on him in the future, crying peace.

The President wants to give the peacemakers their chance. He is sincerely exploring every path, knocking on every door that might possibly lead to peace. Yet he is known to have little faith in the outcome. The most he hopes to accomplish is to convince the world that it is the Communists who are obstructing peace in Viet Nam.

The President plans to lay the story of his peace drive before congressional leaders. He will plead that nothing short of military defeat will compel Hanoi to accept a meaningful peace. Therefore, he will ask for a vote of confidence in the form of a congressional resolution authorizing him to take whatever military action he considers necessary to continue the war.

Of course, the pressure for peace from the people of the world may force both sides to the truce table. But the North Vietnamese response to the peace feelers has indicated little interest in settling the Viet Nam war except on their own harsh terms.

The leaders in Hanoi are the same men who directed the North Vietnamese war against the Japanese and the French. They have always managed to triumph, almost miraculously, against overwhelming odds. They see in the opposition to the war by many Americans the same indecisiveness and division that weakened France and led to the French defeat a decade ago.

Thus the peace demonstrations in this country, by strengthening the North Vietnamese resolve to continue the war, may be helping to achieve exactly the opposite of their declared purpose.

RACIAL SCANDAL

J. Edgar Hoover came up to Newton Brewer at the Laurel Race Track outside Washington recently and congratulated him on becoming the New Maryland Racing Commissioner.

"I knew your mother and father," said the G-man boss. "They knew the difference between right and wrong, and so do you."

Brewer was appointed after it was revealed that Gov. Millard Tawes' son had written insurance for the Bowie Race Track and that the former racing commissioner was getting racing dates ok'd by one of the governor's chief henchmen.

One of the first things the new commissioner did was to stop the chaining of horses, a practice of beating horses with a chain so the rattle of the chain falling in the starting chute will start them off fast.

USA RATES LOW IN LATIN AMERICA

Despite bland assurances by Dean Rusk and Averell Harriman after their return from the recent foreign ministers' conference in Rio De Janeiro, our relations with Latin America are today at the lowest ebb since we pulled the Marines out of Nicaragua, 33 years ago.

The big difference between then and now is that we didn't much care before 1933 how the Latinos felt toward us. Now there is a deep concern that anti-Yanqui sentiment may become pro-Communist sentiment.

Ironically, this preoccupation with the threat rather than with its causes is a prime reason why many of our erstwhile friends throughout the 19 non-Communist Southern Republics have grown disillusioned with us again.

A second important reason is that, though we never tire of preaching democracy, we are always ready to play ball with the DE FACTO regimes set up after the overthrow of democratically elected governments.

Until recently, we could count on being defended from these charges by a certain number of influential Latin American sympathizers. They would point out that we were trying to do something about the root causes of radicalism through the Alliance for Progress, and that our recognition of military juntas was just a mark of our reluctance to intervene in another country's domestic affairs.

Neither argument is being listened to these days. After four years, the Alliance has made so little progress that Lyndon Johnson felt obliged, during the Rio conference, to promise it would be continued beyond the original 1971 cutoff date.

As for the non-intervention pretext, our actions in the Dominican Republic scotched that for at least a generation. The common Latin American belief is that we not only intervened there but intervened on the side of the anti-Democratic armed forces.

Only five Latin American countries voted against us in the Organization of American States last May (with the other abstaining), when we tried to make that interventional multinational. But the hard fact is that just six governments backed the more unreservedly and not one of these holds power through free elections.

Brazil's is a military regime installed by a coup. Paraguay is an old-fashioned, one - man dictatorship. Guatemala and Honduras are currently run by military juntas which ousted legitimate governments in taking over.

Haiti, on the western third of the same Caribbean Island with the Dominican Republic, lives under the terrorist rule of a man who has declared himself president for life. And Nicaraguans have as head of state a puppet of the Somoza family, dominant in that nation for more than 30 years.

These were the six countries which wholeheartedly approved the U.S. scheme for an inter-American peace-keeping force in Santo Domingo.

What persuaded five other Republicans to go along with the idea is best expressed by Colombia's Foreign Minister, Jaramillo Arrubla, who explained privately:

"My government-- and I know this to be true of several more -- felt that the best way to confront the faith accompli of U. S. armed presence in the Dominican Republic was to try to neutralize it as much as possible."

But reaction at home, wherever there was enough freedom of expression to let it be heard, ran so strongly counter to the plan that Colombia, Argentina, Bolivia and Panama -- all of which voted affirmatively -- later backed out of supplying soldiers for the unit.

Little Costa Rica, with no standing army, sent 21 national policemen. This was so unpopular with Costa Ricans that President Francisco Orlich's party is likely to lose the next Congressional elections as a direct result.

While John F. Kennedy was president, the Alliance for Progress ranked all over Latin America as the hottest item to come out of Washington since Franklin Roosevelt proclaimed the Good Neighbor Policy.

It wasn't so much that the Alliance offered any magic cure-all for the monumental ills afflicting that region, but the things Kennedy said about it, the way he said them, and the evidence of his continuing personal interest in the undertaking helped to build up hope.

Everything President Johnson has done since moving into the White House has tended to deflate those hopes. For one thing, he promptly put fellow Texan Tom Mann in charge of Latin American affairs, and Mann is known south of the border as a "Cold Fish" who favors concentrating Alliance investment of "self-liquidating" projects.

Roads and schools, two of Latin America's most vital needs, can never come under that heading. It was for this sort of basic necessity that the Alliance was conceived and launched, not to make profits.

Now Mann has moved up to become Undersecretary of State.

Mrs. Jackson Hunter Gives Program On DAR History

Mrs. Loren Lohr and Mrs. Earl Jarvis entertained the King's Highway Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at the home of Mrs. Jarvis Monday.

Mrs. William Huff, the regent, presided and read the president general's message which emphasized the three aims--patriotism, education and service.

Miss Margaret Harris gave the National Defense Report on the activities of Herbert Ceptheker who is the Communist party's top theoretician and who is now on a mischief-making trip to the North Vietnamese capital. In 1965 he led a highly successful Communist propaganda campaign on American campuses. Communist officials made speeches to 32,000 students at 60 colleges across the country. He made about half of these appearances and the Communists are delighted on the upsurge of radical thinking among the country's young people.

Delegates were elected to the state and national meetings: Mrs. Joseph L. Baker and Mrs. Joseph H. Hayward to the state meeting and Mrs. Helen Loud Jones and Mrs. A. J. Renner to the continental congress in Washington.

Mrs. Jackson Hunter gave the program on the history of the D. A. R. In the late 1800's several organizations were formed to perpetuate the memories of the Revolution but they all excluded women. Mrs. Mary Smith Lockwood, a writer on the Washington Post, wrote a scathing article for the paper pointing out the heroic part played by numerous women during the Revolution. Mrs. Benjamin Harrison talked with Mrs. Lockwood, Mrs. Ellen Walworth, a Washington attorney; Miss Mary Decha and Mrs. Eugenia Washington. On Oct. 11, 1890, a meeting was held of women interested. Eighteen were present and 11 of them paid $33. The Sons of the Revolution helped by serving on an advisory board and helping draw up the Constitution. The First Continental Congress was held in 1892 and the meeting ended with a brilliant dinner at the White House given by Mrs. Harrison who was the first president general.

Congress granted a National Charter in 1895. Soon a library was established and a site purchased for a permanent building. The library now contains 56,000 volumes, pamphlets and microfilm rolls on genealogy and revolutionary history.

Constitutional Hall is the finest auditorium in Washington and is used for concerts and lectures by many organizations. The museum contains many beautiful historic items, gifts to the society. These buildings are the most valuable owned by any women's organization in the world. The society now has 185,000 members.

Mrs. Hunter concluded by giving a quiz on the history of the D. A. R. Mrs. Lohr won the prize, a beautiful azalea.

Howard Chrisman, chairman of the local housing authority, said that preliminary steps are under way, but that no construction date has been set.

Harry Jennings has been selected by the local housing committee as overseer when the project is completed.

Earl Allen Speaks To Civic Club

The Women's Club met Tuesday afternoon at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. B. J. Murback; dessert was served by assistant hostesses Mrs. Max Chandler, Mrs. Harold Hill and Mrs. Raymert Miller. During the business meeting Mrs. Jack Brady was elected secretary to fill the unexpired term vacated by Mrs. Belsheim's resignation.

Mrs. Whitworth introduced the guest speaker, Earl Allen and told of his knowledge and long interest in his subject, the circus. His talk was titled "The Circus -- as it Used to Be; As it Is Today" and was concluded with a film on the circus with its arrival, construction, parade and performance in a small town in Iowa in the year 1937. Recorded calliope music played during the film showing created an atmosphere of authenticity. Circus posters from Mr. Allen's extensive collection decorated the walls of the room.

Mr. Allen is central vice president of the Circus Fans Association and he and Mrs. Allen have attended many of their national conventions. He is also a member of the National Awards Committee for the Circus Hall of Fame. The Allens have extended their interest in this hobby to the decor of their home which has a circus room as well as an annex in the basement which also is decorated in a circus theme.

The February meeting of the Civic Club will be at the home of Mrs. Cline Ables.

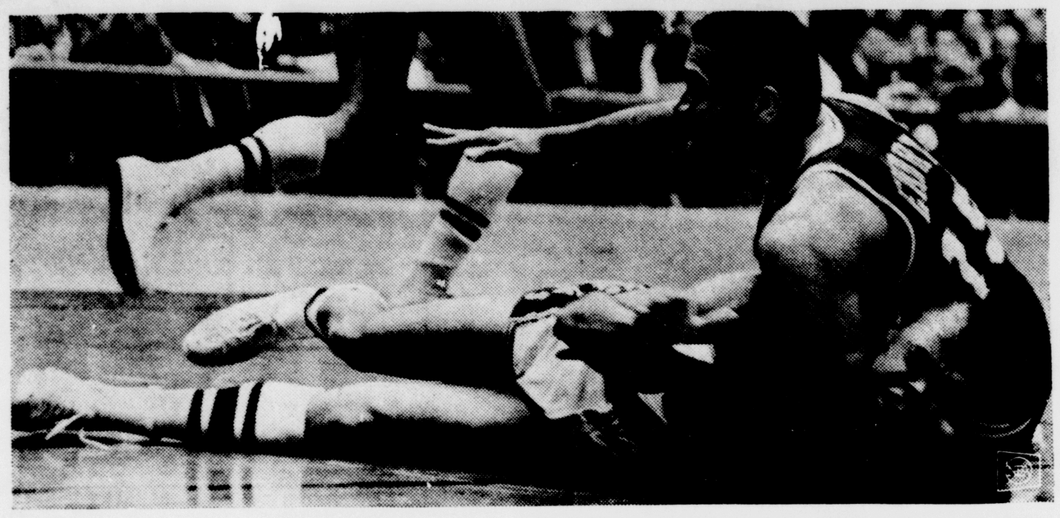
Scott Central At Armory Tonite

Sikeston's basketball Bulldogs will be facing a tough assignment tonight at the Armory on their return to action tonight against Scott Central's redhot Braves who knocked off Cape Central last week in the Cape Christmas Tournament.

Sikeston will enter tonight's encounter on the Armory court well rested from a 53-49 loss to Jackson in the Bulldog's last outing December 14, at Jackson.

Tonight's action at the Armory will begin with the preliminary B game at 7:00, followed by the varsity duel at approximately 8:30. Keeping pace with their varsity team, the Brave's B-team forces also have a fine record of 9-2.



HAZZARD-OUS DUTY—It looks like it, but actually it's not professional wrestling. Instead, it's professional basketball. The combatants are Wayne Embry (15) of the Cincinnati Royals and Walt Hazzard, below, of the Los Angeles Lakers. Give Embry three points for a near-fall.

Richland "B" Tournament Results

RICHLAND -- Bernie continued its winning ways here last night by defeating Charleston 83-80 in one overtime period. Bernie leading 36-35 at half time had to muscle their way into the Semi-finals in one overtime period outscoring Charleston nine points to six.

Craft led all scorers for the night as he poured in 30 for a good night's work. Brown and Simpson led Charleston with 23 and 20 points respectively.

In the second scheduled game of the night Bloomfield had to forfeit to Advance because of a ruling that no boy can play tournaments back to back, Richland also had to drop out of the tournament because of the same reason. This left Puxico still in the tournament. Richland and Bloomfield seeded number one and three respectively were the top contenders to meet in the finals.

Richland played a regular scheduled game with Dexter and defeated them by the score of 62-42. Richland led by Fowler with 23 was the big gun for the Rebels who led at half 35-18. Knight led Dexter scorers with 10 points.

Mets Ask Waivers on Gary Kroll

NEW YORK AP -- The new York Mets asked waivers today on right-handed pitcher Gary Kroll and sent him to the Houston Astros' Oklahoma City farm club in the Pacific Coast League for cash and a minor league player to be named later.

Kroll, who was 6-6 with the Mets in 1965, was optioned to the Mets' Buffalo affiliate in the International League but he did not report. Instead he went to Provo, Utah, and said he was quitting baseball to resume his education.

Kroll, 24, has since talked to Houston officials and changed his mind, a Mets spokesman said.

A sign outside a bar in Buffalo reads, "Never give a drunk black coffee or you'll wind up with a wide-awake drunk on your hands."

Bill Russell States Coaching "For The Birds"

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Before Wednesday night's game Bill Russell of the Boston Celtics considered coaching "for the birds." His sentiments on the subject may be even stronger today.

The Celtics lost to the Los Angeles Lakers 120-113, snapping a string of five straight victories Russell had run up as temporary coach of the National Basketball Association team.

As in the past Russell was at the Boston controls in the absence of Coach Red Auerbach. Auerbach did not accompany the team to Los Angeles because of the serious illness of his father.

Before leaving for the West Coast, Russell had this to say about coaching:

"I don't have the temperament for it. I get too tough on the player-Bill Russell. He's nothing — that Bill Russell — when he plays for me."

Against the Lakers, player Russell contributed only 11 points to the Celtic attack which was led by Sam Jones with 23. Jerry West scored 29 and Walt Hazzard 25 for the Lakers.

In other league action, San Francisco edged New York 118-117 and Baltimore downed St. Louis 114-101 in a doubleheader at Baltimore, Md., and Cincinnati defeated Detroit 117-103 at Dayton, Ohio.

Billy Conn Voted To Boxing Hall Of Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Conn, who gave up the light heavyweight championship to make two unsuccessful tries for Joe Louis' heavyweight title, has been voted into Boxing's Hall of Fame.

Four other boxers also were elected in a worldwide vote of sports writers and sportscasters conducted by Ring Magazine.

The other four were old-timers Jake Kilrain, Johnny Coulon, Young Corbett II and Owen Moran. They brought the total in the hall to 87.

Conn captured the light-heavy title in 1939, beating Melio Bettina and Gus Lesnevich in elimination bouts. He then relinquished the crown to campaign as a heavyweight, getting his first shot at Louis in 1941.

Conn lost but built a solid lead on points until the 13th round when he was stopped. Five years later, after both had served in the military, they met again and Louis knocked Conn out in the eighth round.

Indoor Track Meet Opens at Cow Palace

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Milers and two-milers take spotlight roles Saturday night as the third annual Examiner Invitational Indoor Track meet opens the United States season on the boards of the Cow Palace.

Great Britain's Alan Simpson and John Whetton challenge America's Jim Ryun and Bob Day in a mile which could bring this area's first indoor time under four minutes.

In outdoor races, with fewer turns, each of the quartet has run well under four. Ryun, a freshman at Kansas, won the AAU title last spring and has a best time for 3:55.3, the American outdoor record.

Bob Day of UCLA captured the National Collegiate Athletic Association crown in June and posts a best of 3:56.4. Simpson holds the fastest time in Great Britain with 3:55.7 while Whetton has run a 3:55.7. The latter last season won 19 indoor races out of the 20 he ran.

Gerry Lindgren, the Washington State freshman who beat Russia's best in 1964, heads the two - mile field. It includes John Lawson of Kansas, who just was edged out in the NCAA meet last spring.

Twenty-two events are on the Saturday night schedule.

FAMILIAR FACE?—Randy Matson, the world's record holder in the shot put, has temporarily switched sports at Texas A&M. He's the center for the basketball team.

Miller Trophy To Ernie Kennedy, of ISU

AMES AP -- Ernie Kennedy, who has completed his football career at Iowa State University, and junior quarterback Tim Van Galder, were the top winners of awards Wednesday night at a Cyclone recognition dinner.

Kennedy, senior defensive end from Cincinnati, was named the Lineman of The Year, was presented the Miller Trophy for the greatest contribution to the squad and was honored as the best scholar in the university's industrial administration department.

Van Galder of Madison, Wis. was given two awards. He was named Back of The Year and received the Aulman Memorial Scholarship.

17th Annual Senior Bowl Saturday

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Football players in Mobile for Saturday's 17th annual Senior Bowl hoped today for clearing skies to permit the first good practice day since they arrived last Monday.

Two-a-day practices were scheduled. Both Weeb Ewbank, coaching the South team, and North Coach Mike Holovak indicated they may drill twice Friday also since steady rain has sharply cut into practice.

Despite the rain, the Rebel squad got in a solid workout Wednesday.

The probable starting South offensive unit continued taking shape and it appeared several positions have been settled.

Injured Alabama quarterback Steve Sloan threw the ball for the first time in Wednesday's work. But Texas A&I's Randy Johnson will probably open at quarterback.

Sloan's status is not definite, but even if he is able to play, Johnson apparently will have an edge. Johnson has had the advantage of working with Rebel receivers all week.

Out Of The Can

Dream of catching your own "canned" salmon? Well, if fishery biologists are successful in many states across the country, this seemingly unlikely event may come to pass.

The salmon in question is kokanee, a close cousin of the Pacific sockeye species, relate the fishing experts at Mercury outboards. While possessing certain traits common to the salmon tribe--especially table fare appeal -- this diminutive salmon shuns seaward migration.

A freshwater dweller, the kokanee represents a bright hope in the fishing picture which becomes more challenging to biologists each year. With fingers crossed, experimental introductions are being made wherever suitable waters exist.

Kokanee are cold water lovers, preferring a temperature of around 55 degrees. In many recently constructed reservoirs, such conditions prevail. After spawning, which occurs every three or four years, kokanee die --characteristic of Pacific salmon.

Fishing for these tasty gamesters is largely done by trolling at favorable depths. A worm-baited hook preceded by weighted gang spinners has proven most productive in kokanee waters. Since they run in schools, where one is taken more action in the same spot usually results but handle with care; they possess extremely soft mouths and must be boated with caution.

Though most familiar in western states today, kokanee experiments are taking place elsewhere. With persistance and good fortune, the folks at Mercury say, there is a possibility that these savory fish may become fairly common across the land.

Kokanee may never replace the canned variety, but they'll be a welcome addition to every fishing family.

Rodeo's Big Money Winner

DENVER, Colo. -- Idaho's rangy Dean Oliver, rodeo's big money winner for the last three years is pacing the field again for 1966, the professional Rodeo Cowboys Association reported Monday.

Oliver, 35, collected $3,539 for a little more than a half-minute's competition during the just-completed Dallas, Tex. All-Star rodeo to maintain his now familar spot at the top of the game's money charts.

The big man from Boise -- six, three and 210 pounds -- bested 88 other calf roping entries with total time of 24.8 seconds on two calves and wrestled down two steers in 10.8 seconds, finishing fourth in that event, for the lion's share of an overall $34,446 prize money at stake in the Texas state fair coliseum.

Oliver logged $33,163 in winnings last year to nail his third consecutive all-around cowboy championship, boosting his career total to over $283,000. He started on the pro rodeo trail in 1952.

Other big money winners at Dallas included William Harris, Colleyville, Tex., $2,423 in steer wrestling; Junior Garrison, Marlow, Okla., $2,005 in calf roping; Bob Berger, Halstead, Kas., $1,370, saddle bronc riding; Paul Mayo, Grinnell, Ia., $1,363, bull riding; Harry Tompkins, Dublin, Tex., and Jim Mihalek, Broomfield, Colo., $964 each in bareback bronc riding.

The big-hat fraternity competes this week, January 3-8, at Odessa, Tex., and then will head north for Denver's National Western stock show and rodeo, January 14-22. The latter offers over $60,000 prize money.

Looking Back Over The Years

50 years ago

Mrs. L. B. Kornegger was called to Charleston Wednesday on account of the illness of her daughter and grandson, Mrs. George Kirk and baby.

A traveling faker permitted himself to be chained on the streets of Sikeston Tuesday with 55 feet of chain and 13 locks. For a half hour he stood locked fast while the crowd of perhaps 200 people made up $10 for him. Then he burst his bonds with all apparent ease.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Baker of Ruth street are the proud parents of a baby girl born January 3.

More than $45,000 in taxes were collected in Sikeston by the county during the month of December. The city collected something over $17,000 for their part.

Miss Lola Shankle was the honored guest at a handkerchief shower given by the Eastern Star Saturday night before leaving for Washington, D. C. to accept a government position.

John Welter, sr., of this city died at his home December 30 following a paralytic stroke which occurred the 19th of December at the age of 73 years.

Mrs. Thacker, a sister of Elmer Grant, died suddenly at her home in Morley Wednesday night.

Milem Limbaugh's service station will be opened today in its new quarters in the Mathews building on the southeast corner of Malone and Kingshighway.

At their next meeting, members of the board of education will discuss constructing this spring a new school building on a lot immediately north of the athletic field. The meeting date is set for January 22, but it is possible the board will convene early next week since several matters of importance will require a decision not long after then.

Mrs. Mary P. Woodward, field supervisor for the State Board of Health, district No. 2, who resides in Sikeston, suffered a fractured ankle during the Christmas vacation and is now confined to a hospital at Springfield, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Kirby celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home, 211 Moore avenue, with a family reunion on Christmas Day. They were married September 29, 1895, but postponed their celebration until Christmas when their children could be with them.

Three persons were killed instantly when a southbound Frisco Railroad troop train struck a Chevrolet truck in which they were riding at the Kewanee crossing Saturday afternoon. The dead are: Willie Cox, 40 years old; Vernon Cox, 19, son of Willie Cox; and Ray Sizemore, 19.

For Today From The Upper Room

Teach me thy way, O Lord, and lead me in a plain path. (Psalm 27:11)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, we beseech Thee so to guide us this day that at its close we shall find we have become more like Jesus in all our thoughts, words, and acts. Bless us with Thine indwelling presence. Use us for Thy divine purpose, through Christ our Savior. Amen.

THE Outlook for Business
for the first six months of 1966

PAPER INDUSTRY
John R. Kimberly, President
Kimberly-Clark Corporation

With its wide range of end products and the diverse markets in which they are sold, the pulp, paper, and paperboard industry pervades our entire economy. Consumption closely matches the ups and downs of the total economy, and paper industry earnings have generally followed the cyclical pattern of American industry.

Throughout 1965, the paper industry has been booming, with operating rates the highest in several years. Unfilled order backlogs remain high in most lines of paper and paperboard, with inventories at satisfactory levels.

Consumption of paper and paperboard in the United States in 1965 was expected to total about 48 million tons, a 4 per cent increase over 1964. This is close to 500 pounds per person, an important milestone of growth.

Every indication is that the vitality of 1965, in both the general economy and the paper industry, will carry forward into the first half of 1966. We look for paper and paperboard consumption to be at the 50 million ton annual rate, or 4 per cent ahead of 1965. Continued high levels of industrial activity will support demand for paperboard and other packaging materials supplied by the paper industry. The outlook for consumer income and spending is favorable for disposable paper products, as well as the newsprint and printing papers that carry the billions of advertising messages.

Capital expenditures of the paper and allied products industry have been at the $1 billion a year level since 1964. Outlays in 1966 are currently forecast at about $1.3 billion. Such record spending levels over a period of years suggest that a potential surplus of capacity for certain types of pulp, paper, and paperboard may loom as a problem for the industry in the 1966 to 1968 period. However, it is my conviction that the industry has been learning to live with similar problems since 1960. The desirability of a capacity cushion to meet short-term surges in demand has been repeatedly demonstrated in recent years.

Economic development abroad is expanding markets for U.S. pulp and papermakers. The growth potential for paper in the industrialized nations of Europe and the Far East is substantial in view of the fact that per capita consumption is far below that of the United States. The 1966 outlook is for at least a 4 per cent increase in exports over the 1.8 million tons shipped abroad in the current year.

Paper industry expenditures on research and development in 1965 were close to $85 million. While this is not a large share of industry sales of $16 billion, it has been steadily increasing in recent years. Thus far, the industry has shown itself able to withstand assaults on its markets by competitive materials and to create many new markets. However, increased emphasis on market and product research is required if the industry is to continue to prosper.

During 1964 and 1965, some firming of prices, higher operating rates, improved processes, and operating efficiences resulted in significant growth in paper industry earnings. Of equal importance, the expected rate of return on stockholders investment in 1965 at 9.7 per cent will be the best in a decade.

The expanding economy of 1966 should favor continued growth of sales and earnings for the pulp, paper, and paperboard industry.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Our 8-year-old son is left-handed. My wife is trying to change him over. She insists it is an unnecessary handicap for a person to go through life left-handed, and that it's all a matter of breaking the habit.

Last night my wife strapped Jack's left hand to his side with a belt and made him feed himself with his right hand. He dropped most of his food on the tablecloth and the floor and his younger sister laughed at him. He got so mad he cried. We had a fuss at the table and I finally told my wife in plain language to leave the boy alone.

My wife says if we don't keep at the boy and make him do things right-handed, he will have a problem all of his life. What do you know about this subject?--BATTLE WEARY

Dear Weary: I know of some mothers whose left-handed sons did just fine. To name a few, there's Mrs. Koufax's son, Sandy; Mrs. Ruth's son, Babe; Mrs. da Vinci's son, Leonardo, and Mrs. Mauldin's son, Bill. Insist that your wife leave the boy alone before she makes a nervous wreck of him.

Dear Ann Landers: Please print my letter for the woman who signed herself "Nothing Withheld." She felt that her husband owed it to her to spell out every detail about his relationship with the woman he went with before they married.

I was the same way. I nagged all the intimate details out of my husband and now I'm so miserable I don't know what to do. Whenever he whispers some little love phrase in my ear I wonder if he said the same things to her. When he holds me in his arms I can't help but think that he is such a wonderful lover because he has had so much practice.

The ghost of my husband's former sweetheart haunts me. Now I wish I had kept my nose out of his past and not been so inquisitive. Please tell all girls who want to pump a man for information of this kind that they are better off not knowing. --IGNORANCE IS BLISS

Dear Ig: I DID tell'em but you told'em even better. A testimonial from one who has been there is always more effective. Thanks for giving me a grand assist.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I married a widower with three children. We are very happy. His three children (college age) have had some bitter arguments among themselves as to who gets what pieces of furniture and the personal possessions of their mother. (She died two years ago.) The most fought over item is a beautiful diamond wedding ring which their mother had reset just before she died. All the children want it.

I am writing to ask what you think should be done with the ring. My husband and I are not flush with money and he feels that it would sensible to sell the ring and put the money to some good use. He is afraid, however, that his children may feel that he is not paying their mother the proper respect. He says they are quite sentimental. What do you say?--SIDELINES

Dear Sidelines: These kids sound as sentimental as a collection of water moccasins.

If there were only one child I would say the ring should be given to the child, but since there are several, and "they all want it" the best solution is the one your husband has suggested. So long as the suggestion is HIS and not yours, the kids have no right to criticize.

To solve some of the frustrations, disappointments and disillusionments of married life, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

GOP Confident of Boost in Stock

Editor's Note: Next year is an election year and the Viet Nam War is bound to loom large in the political consciousness. Already there are sounds of issues being hammered together. This last of four articles on America's role in Viet Nam reports on its impact on the political front.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republicans will bound back to Washington this month confident that President Johnson faces decisions on Viet Nam and the economy which are likely to boost the GOP's political stock.

As Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and House Minority Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan see it, Johnson must make the difficult choice between inflation or a slowdown in his Great Society programs if he is to provide the substantial increase in Viet Nam spending even the administration regards as inevitable.

There have been estimates that the rising costs of the Southeast Asia conflict may add $10 billion to the military budget in a year.

Curiously, that is exactly the amount the politically powerful AFL-CIO wants the President to put into education, from elementary schools to college, in the same period of time. This represents only one source of the tremendous pressures that will be brought on Johnson to keep various programs rolling in high gear.

"As I see it," Ford said, "The President has the alternative of cutting back on his domestic programs, raising taxes or rolling up a big inflationary budget."

"He certainly isn't going to recommend raising taxes. If he backs down on the programs he pushed so hard to get in the last session, he is going to undercut a lot of Democratic candidates who are depending on them for election. If he yields to inflation, he is going to hear from the country in no uncertain terms."

Dirksen said in a separate interview he looks for an administration effort to crowd into this fiscal year, which ends next June 30, as much supplemental spending as possible. This would tend to hold down the total of the new budget to be submitted in January.

"There will be stiff opposition to any such deceptive practice," he said.

Administration officials already have estimated that current year spending will run between $105 and $107 billion, instead of the $99.7 billion estimated last January. Because revenues are up, they figure the June 30 deficit will range between $7 and $8 billion.

Republicans believe the psychological impact of a new January budget estimate of more than $100 billion in spending will dramatize their contention that Johnson is taking the country into an era of inflation.

If this is followed by increases in the prices of food, appliances, automobiles, services and all of the things the average family buys they believe disgruntled consumers will take it out on the Democrats at the polls in the congressional races next November.

They emphasize any cutbacks, Johnson might make in domestic aid programs, the Republican policy coordinating committee expects to have a report soon on the impact on such programs of increased Viet Nam expenditures. This presumably will spell out for the beneficiaries just what they aren't going to get if Johnson clamps down to make way for war expenditures.

Because they didn't want to be accused of displaying American disunity abroad, the Republicans on the whole have been strained in criticizing Johnson's course in Viet Nam. They apparently have developed now a technique of urging the President on to greater military efforts and in the same voice criticizing him for getting involved in an "endless" war. While they say they don't quarrel with Johnson's objectives, they complain that he isn't getting anywhere.

In this, the Republicans are firing at the most vulnerable point in Johnson's political defense, the accelerating commitment of U.S. manpower to jungle warfare. As American casualty lists mount, the President's problem of maintaining broad national support for his actions seems likely to become more acute.

The GOP committee has offered as its alternatives a naval and air quarantine of North Viet Nam, supplemented by air and sea bombardment of "significant military targets," Dirksen said military leaders ought to pick the targets, a task that Johnson has taken over personally in the past.

Ford argued that if the quarantine -- bombing strategy were carried out, the need for ground forces could be reduced. But he and other Republican leaders avoided saying what they thought might happen if U.S. warships halted Soviet supply vessels bound for Haiphong, North Viet Nam's chief port.

Dirksen, who has stood behind Johnson, indicated, that he, too, is becoming more critical as the election year approaches.

"We don't quarrel about being in Viet Nam," he said. "But we have a quarrel because we have been there too long without decisive results."

This obviously was aimed at capitalizing on the impatience of the average American, who wants to get a nasty job over with.

The Republicans feel perfectly free to make almost any kind of suggestion since they know they aren't going to be called upon to demonstrate that they could do a better job than Johnson in running the war.

It's the President who will get the blame if the U.S. position in Viet Nam doesn't improve by election time. While the voters never turn out a president in a war, they sometimes take out their annoyances on the candidates of his party.

White House Wit

John Quincy Adams
President, 1825-1829

On a trip to England, John Quincy Adams made this notation in his diary:

"There is something so fascinating in the women I meet within this country, that it is well for me I am obliged immediately to leave it."

A June 19, 1828, entry in John Quincy Adam's diary:

"The wife of Willis Anderson came again to petition for his pardon. She hinted that her husband did not wish to be discharged from prison himself, and that it would be no relaxation of his punishment to turn him over to her."

Mary Tyler Moore Pinup Queen of Troop

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Dear Miss Moore, I saw your picture in Stars and Stripes, and I enjoyed it. When I was back home, my wife used to say you had skinny legs. I didn't think so, and I'm glad to find out I was right. Would you please send me a photograph?"

The message was typical among the hundreds of letters Mary Tyler Moore has been receiving from GI's in Viet Nam. What started as a publicity stunt is shaping up as a full-scale move to make her a pin-up queen of the Asian war.

Miss Moore spends her professional life as the fully clothed wife on "The Dick Van Dyke Show." But she is also an accomplished dancer and beneath those frocks and aprons is a whistle-worthy form.

Alert press agents, realizing this, proposed that Mary pose for some cheesecake photos that could be sent to interested servicemen in Viet Nam. A dozen photographers were invited to a snapping session, competing to produce the most attractive pose.

A photograph of the photographers at work appeared in the overseas service newspaper, Stars and Stripes. That prompted the letters.

"It happened so suddenly that I haven't been able to get the photos yet," said Mary during a break in TV filming. "But I've beeen answering all the letters, turning out 25 to 50 a day in every moment I can spare. I'm getting writer's cramp but enjoying it.

"Some of the letters come with 20 signatures, so the work mounts up. But it's a very small thing that I can do, compared to what they're doing over there."

In the photograph that Mary will be sending, she wears a form-fitting dancer's costume slit down the front. Only the legs are exposed. But then, Betty Grable did all right in another war.

Mary Tyler Moore will soon be shedding her housewifely role with the Van Dyke show and heading for other pursuits. The series will end after this season, not for the usual reason of poor ratings. It continues among the CBS leads.

But Van Dyke has a logjam of film commitments, as does producer-creater Carl Reiner. Mary told her plans:

"I'll go to Universal to start the first of 10 pictures. Or, if it's a bomb, the first of one. They have the options."

DR. BURNELL W. KINGREY, dean of the school of veterinary medicine at the University of Missouri in Columbia, inspects a microscope in one of the new modern laboratories built as an additon to Connaway hall. In the background are two laboratory technicians, Mrs. Marilyn Snell of Columbia and Mrs. Mildred Floyd of New Franklin.

School of Veterinary Medicine Shows Growth

COLUMBIA, Mo., -- Located off the beaten path in the southeast extremity of the campus is a division that to students perhaps is the least well known of the University of Missouri schools but whose impact is growing in importance not only to the campus but to the economy of the state.

The school of veterinary medicine which Dr. Burnell W. Kingrey heads as dean has graduated 440 men and three women since the first class took degrees in 1950. It is one of only 18 schools in the nation offering degrees of Doctor of Veterinary Medicine.

The school was established in 1946 on orders of the Missouri General Assembly, which by now is beginning to realize what a bargain it obtained. Capital costs for the most part are represented in the new $1 million clinic and less than $500,000 spent in enlarging the half-century old Connaway Hall in which is located administrative offices as well as laboratories and classrooms. Few new schools of veterinary medicine are under consideration in the nation because of an estimated $18 million such as installation would cost.

Demand for veterinarians is growing over the nation from industry, armed services, U.S. Department of Agriculture, research organizations, educational institutions and need for general practitioners. An indication is shown in Missouri where some 30 percent of the new veterinarians licensed in the state are graduates of schools from other states.

Demand for veterinarians, and of students to enroll in the six-year course, led the University to double the size of its entering class, from 30 to 60, this year. Within four years when the school could have a total enrollment of 240 students, laboratories, classrooms and clinic will be jampacked, but the operation is programmed to be conducted in existing space. The entering classes can't be enlarged further, however, without a significant building program.

The school is quite well known to practicing veterinarians and to livestock men over the state. To the clinic are sent animals referred by Missouri veterinarians for diagnosis and treatment by specialists with specialized equipment. Essentially the school accepts everything offered in the way of clinical material, and it generally works out that only the most difficult cases--those with which practicing veterinarians need help--are sent to the clinic. Clinical material currently is in abundance and is increasing every year, but more may be needed when research and graduate training programs are expanding. Farm animals and such domestic animals as dogs and cats are sent to the clinic, but an eagle, lion and salamander are among the more exotic species which have required treatment.

One method of measuring the effectiveness of a school is in its research, particularly if the studies seem significant enough to attract financial support from outside sources.

In that respect, the Missouri school is meeting the test. Its location on the campus of the University contributes to effectiveness of research because of the School of Medicine and the College of Agriculture and their interrelations with the School of Veterinary Medicine in seeking solution to problems of mutual interest.

The dairy husbandry, animal husbandry and poultry husbandry departments in the agricultural division share interest in veterinary research. So, too, does the medical school where cooperative research on the zoonooses -- diseases transmissable from animal to man, of which rabies is perhaps the best known--and environmental health is under way. Cancer, comparative medicine, water pollution, poisoning by plants and chemicals are under study. In the near future adventure into the unknown will become possible with entry of the nuclear research reactor into the campus research program.

Among the recent research grants received by Veterinary Medical faculty members:

Dr. Robert C. McClure, professor of veterinary anatomy, a grant of $29,784 from the Public Health Service, for research conducted cooperatively with the School of Dentistry at the University of Missouri at Kansas City on the effects of antibiotics on tooth development; Dr. Lloyd E. Davis, professor of veterinary physiology and pharmacology, a grant of $43,085 from the Public Health Service for a comparative study of metabolism of drugs in a variety of domestic animals; Dr. Donald C. Blenden, professor of community health and medical practice, on a $6,000 Public Health Service grant for studies on environmental effect coincident with congenital abnormalities; Dr. Donald E. Weinman, associate professor of veterinary physiology and pharmacology, and Dr. John R. Campbell, associate professor of dairy husbandry, $4,650 from Diamond Laboratories of Des Moines, Ia., for studies on comparative values of injected minerals and vitamins; Dean Kingrey, a grant from the Public Health Service, one of two made to perfect a clinical record system in which an attempt to standardize, through use of the same terminology in diagnoses, will be made; Dr. R. B. Wescott, associate professor of microbiology, $1,500 by Chemargo Corp., of Kansas City, for studies of parasite control in cats through drugs.

Several projects are under way on infectious and noninfectious illness of domestic livestock; Dr. Blenden is winding up a six-year $100,000 project financed by the Public Health Service, on lextospirosis, a fever producing illness in which swimming pools and slow moving water areas are involved; on equine encepholomelitis, a virus disease of the brain spread by mosquitos; and a laboratory animal medicine study that involves newborn by Cesarean operations being raised in disease-free environments for study of treatment of diseases.

Among new studies will be one on aging animals. Little is known about diseases of the aged in so far as slaughter animals are concerned; their life expectancy isn't great!

Another field will be opened when space sciences laboratories are completed on the campus.

Research of interest to the general public, of course, is in the field of cancer. Veterinarians have known for years that viruses can produce leukemia in animals and have identified strains -- one of the fields in which animal scientists appear to lead the medical field. The University Veterinary School has four researchers working on cancer control, one on identification of viruses that produce it, and the cancer research program is growing.

Scouts Are In Record Numbers

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Noel J. Fischer, organization and extension chairman, Southeast Missouri Council, Boy Scouts of America, announces that 6228 boys were in Scouting at the end of the year.

He said that the highest prior membership was 5,876.

The Council had an objective of 6,138 boys. In addition the council had an objective of organizing 27 new units, which would make units to 255 units in the 14-county area.

Fischer stated that the council organized 33 new units and for a total of 260.

A goal of 6,800 boys has been set for 1966.

Malden Keeps Busy

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Karl Malden was explaining why he goes to universities around the country to conduct drama seminars without pay:

"My father used to ask me, 'What did you do today?' If I said 'Nothing,' he'd always tell me, 'That day will never come back; you've wasted it.' "

His father's words returned to Malden during the inevitable lapses between movies. The Oscar winner ("A Streetcar Named Desire," 1951) is one of Hollywood's busiest actors; this year he performed in three important films, "The Cincinnati Kid," "Bullwhip Griffin," "Nevada Smith."

But every film actor experiences idle periods between pictures. At such times, Malden admitted, "I'm bored stiff."

He is a graduate of the Actor's Studio and hence believes in continuous study of his craft. But such is not possible in Hollywood, he declared, even though acting workshops have been attempted from time to time.

"Everything is too commercial here," said Malden. "Actors don't join classes just to polish up their skills. They join with the idea that 'maybe if I do some scenes with Malden, he will recommend me for his next picture.'

"In college communities it's different. Students are in classes for what they can learn."

So he went back to college. As Malden Sekulovich of Gary, Ind., he didn't get very far at Arkansas State Teachers College. He chucked an athletic scholarship for a career in the theater. His return to the campus life was occasioned by an invitation from an old friend who teaches dramatics at Eastern New Mexico University.

Word got around the academic community that Malden was available. He also accepted invitations from Kansas State Teachers and Indiana University. Now he has eight future dates, including Denver, San Jose State, Northwestern and Midland, Neb.

"I accept the dates with the proviso that I can leave if a movie job should come up," the actor explained. "For that reason I don't want to be paid.

"After I was at Kansas, the university sent me a check for a thousand dollars. I sent it back with the suggestion that they might convert it into a Karl Malden scholarship fund, if they wanted to. That was done, and now worthy dramatic students are given a hundred dollars a semester."

Malden's plan is to visit each campus for a three-week period. He lives and eats among the students and reports that after the first few days he is accepted as part of the local scene.

"I specify that I want to work with advanced acting classes, no more than 20 to 25 in each session," he said. "Most of the time we do scenes and improvise. The instructor can remain in the class if he wants. But he has to get up and make a fool of himself, just as we do."

Malden, who has a daughter at the University of Oregon, said his collegiate experiences send him back to Hollywood refreshed. How does his wife feel about these absences?

"She approves," he grinned. "She knows what a miserable person I can be when I'm not working."

Odd Talent Merger

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "It should be an interesting experience," said Marlon Brando, an expression of doubt appearing on his classic features.

The actor was speaking of his next film venture, "The Countess from Hong Kong." It promises to be one of the most noteworthy of recent movies, inasmuch as he will costar with Sophia Loren and both will be directed by Charlie Chaplin.

The odd combination of talents has caused wonderment in the film world, and the feeling is shared by Brando.

Has the script been written?

"Well, yes," said Brando hesitantly. "That is, he sent me one. But then he sent a message later telling me to disregard the previous script as he was writing an entirely new one."

Why is Brando doing the film?

"Because Chaplin asked me," he explained. "When a man of his stature in the industry writes a script for you, you can hardly refuse. Why he should think of me for a comedy, I haven't the faintest idea. But he said I was the only one who could play it."

Brando added with a grin: "I and Sean Connery, I guess. I understand Chaplain also had Connery on the hook, in case I didn't come through."

The deal for "The Countess from Hong Kong" resulted from the labors of Jay Kanter, longtime Brando agent and friend. Now a top executive of MCA, parent of Universal Pictures, Kanter recently assumed control of the company's European filming. He sounded out Chaplin, who disclosed he had been writing a new comedy for two years.

Kanter arranged a summit meeting between Brando and Chaplin in London.

It was the first time Brando had met the comedy master, and they apparently got along well. Brando has met his costar, Miss Loren, only briefly at a long-ago Hollywood event.

The actor seemed a bit mystified by the whole project. I asked if he could briefly summarize the plot.

"No," he replied.

"I play an American, a man from an aristocratic family, well-dressed but wan, tired — not jaded, but archly bemused by the world at large. He is married and is trying for an important government post, an ambassadorship. No, maybe it's secretary of state.

"The appointment comes through, but he gets himself involved with a woman, a white Russian. She stows away in his cabin on an ocean liner, and he spends most of the time trying to keep her hidden."

World Price Hassle

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK -- The hassle over metal prices is worldwide, not just a private quarrel between the U. S. government and the producers of steel, copper and aluminum.

Prices of copper are soaring on world markets, ignoring the rollback which Washington got from domestic firms that tried to raise theirs.

The price of American-produced copper stays at 36 cents a pound. But foreign producers have boosted the price on the world market to 42 cents. And in London metal dealers were asking 71⅞ cents a pound for spot delivery Tuesday and 68⅝ cents for delivery three months from now -- both record high quotations. The dealers could ask that because a worldwide shortage makes quickly needed copper hard for manufacturers to find.

In both London and Singapore the price of spot tin advanced again Tuesday. Shortages here, too, have sent prices soaring in recent weeks.

The move of three American makers of structural steel to raise its price brought quick retaliation from Washington. But it caused just about as much interest abroad, where steel mills have been finding the American market ever more accessible. U. S. imports of steel rose sharply in 1965. Still higher prices here might give European and Japanese mills even more of a foothold in the booming American market.

And both at home and abroad the makers of materials that can compete with structural steel in the big construction boom foreseen for 1966 are assessing what opportunities a price rise in steel would afford them to expand the markets for steel substitutes.

The three U. S. companies raising prices were: Bethlehem Steel with around 40 per cent of the industry's capacity to produce structural steel; Inland Steel with around 10 per cent; and Colorado Fuel and Iron with about 4 per cent.

To fight the price hike announcement, the U. S. government ordered its purchasing agents for defense and civilian projects to buy their steel from companies holding to the old and lower price. The government buys about one-fourth of the structural steel produced. Last year about 12 per cent of such steel used in the United States was imported.

Just as watchful as Washington were the makers of cement, prestressed and reinforced concrete, since their products have been giving steel competition in the building field. Copper, aluminum, glass and plastics also have invaded many steel markets, although few that structural steel calls its own.

Aluminum producers also had a run-in with Washington when they tried to raise the basic price of their metal, citing rising production costs and a growing world demand. But the government had a huge stockpile of aluminum built up as defense measure. And talk of releasing tons of aluminum from the stockpile sent American producers scurrying to rescind the price rise.

Even so, producers of aluminum products have since said that the steadily rising world demand for the metal is likely to see future price increases in aluminum end-products here, even if the basic metal is unchanged.

The problem of holding down price increases at home is complicated by the stresses of this domestic economy -- it is made doubly difficult by the worldwide shortages of some metals and rising demand for them.

KANSAS CITY AP -- Atty. Gen. Norman H. Anderson urged all citizens today to actively support the legislative redistricting amendment to be voted on at the Jan. 14 special election.

He called it "the only reasonable solution at this time to the problem of reapportionment and still allow the citizens of this state to have a voice in the selection of their house of representative districts."

Anderson's plea was made in a speech prepared for a meeting of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce.

He said the Jan. 14 special election "could very possibly be the most important election to be held in this state in recent years."

He warned that voters will not be deciding for or against reapportionment because the federal court determined that a year ago when it found Missouri's Legislature to be malapportioned and ordered redistricting on a one man-one vote basis.

If Amendment No. 3 is defeated, Anderson said the only alternatives are that the federal court would reapportion the House or that House candidates would have to run at large.

Such an election, he said "could be catastrophic" because there might be 2,000 to 3,000 names on the ballot and no voter could make an intelligent selection for the 163 House seats.

Havana Swings to Taboo Tunes

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Havana teen-agers swing to the black market rock 'n' roll records, says a 14-year-old airlift refugee.

Such music, frowned on by Cuba's Communist government, sometimes costs as much as $40 per album, the youth said. Records are smuggled into Cuba, he added. The boy declined use of his name.

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A retired automobile executive and his wife, who met while attending Goshen Ind. College in the 1920s, have given the college a million dollars to builda new library.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Good of East Lansing made the donation to a fund-raising campaign started by the college last year for $3.5 million in proposed expansion moves.

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — There were at least 1,086 traffic deaths in New Jersey last year, the highest total in 28 years. The State Motor Vehicle Division says the final toll will be announced in three weeks. The 1965 toll was the highest since 1,278 were killed in 1937. The record 1,302 toll was set in 1931.

BOSTON (AP) — Gov. John A. Volpe has signed a bill authorizing Massachusetts to contribute $250,000 to continue longhaul commuter service of the New Haven Railroad.

Connecticut has contributed $950,000 and Rhode Island $500,000 to preserve the railthrough June 30. The service to be subsidizied links Boston and New York via Providence, R. I., and New Haven, Conn., and a line between Springfield and New York via Hartford and New Haven.

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's largest medical research building-a $15-million, 20-story structure — has been dedicated by Columbia University.

The laboratory is named for restaurant chain executive William Black, a Columbia alumnus of the class of 1920. His $5-million gift was the largest amount received by the university from a living person in its 211-year history.

BOSTON (AP) — Scholarship awards to 655 Massachusetts students studying medicine, dentistry, and nursing have been announced by Gov. John A. Volpe. recipients must be needy, academically qualified, and have lived in the state for four years prior to the award. The grants are for the current school year.

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Gov. John H. Reed has proposed a four-point legislative program to stop what he called "the senseless slaughter on our highways."

He said he would ask the special Maine legislative session convening Jan. 17 to: Approve the addition of 20 troopers to the 259-man state police force; enact a new driver license control system; appropriate $14,700 for continuation of the state's driver improvement program.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Rep. Robert E. Sweeney, whose Ohio Congress at-large seat is to be abolished by congressional redistricting, says he will seek the Democratic nomination for state attorney general in the May primary.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The Methodist Church Board of Education says Methodists are giving more money for higher education but that rising costs make increased church support essential.

The report says current support is inadequate "in this day of unprecedented demands and rising costs" even though Methodists give more money to education than to any other effort. The report said church members gave more than $18.3 million to education.

World in 1965 Goes To Printer

Our big history book of the year, "The World in 1965," has gone to the printers and will be ready for you early in February.

It's the second notable issue prepared for this and 400 other member newspapers by The Associated Press, the world's foremost news-gathering organization. The 1964 editor, a best seller with nearly 100,000 already distributed, also still is available.

Not just another almanac filled with routine facts and tables, "The World in 1965" recreates the events of the year as no other book does.

A big book, 10½-12½ inches in size and 288 pages thick, it's bound handsomely in hard covers, and contains three dozen plates in full color, hundreds of dramatic news pictures, and scores of in-depth articles on the year's outstanding events. Lesser happenings are covered also. The authors are some of the best-known byline writers in The AP, including many who covered the events described.

It's an indispensable book for students and teachers, and also for anyone with an intelligent interest in the pageant of current history. It's an ideal layaway gift for any child who was born during the year. And bibliophiles who want a complete set of this series surely will want to order now while the books are still available.

This is all the more true since the cost amounts to only $3,-about one-third of what you would ordinarily expect to pay for a volume of this size and quality.

You can place your order now by sending a check for $3 for each copy desired to "The World in 1965," Daily Sikeston Standard, Box 66, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Missouri Citizens Can Use Tax Table

ST. LOUIS -- Taxpayers in Missouri may use a state sales tax table as a guideline when preparing their 1965 federal income tax returns.

For the first time since it was introduced in 1960, the table has been printed in the tax instructions which are mailed to taxpayers. District Director, E. O. Bookwalter of the St. Louis District of Internal Revenue said.

The table is based on a 1960-61 study of consumer spending patterns by the bureau of labor statistics and shows the average amount of state sales tax paid by Missouri residents.

The table may be used by taxpayers who itemize their federal income tax deductions.

The table omits the state sales tax on automobiles purchased. Taxpayers who purchase an automobile may add the sales tax paid on the purchase to the amount shown in the table.

District Director Bookwalter reminded taxpayers that they are not required to use the table.

The table is furnished as a guide for the convenience of taxpayers who itemize deductions on their federal income tax returns but who wish to use a standard amount for state sales tax which will not require detailed substantiation. Taxpayers have the choice, of course, of deducting the actual amount of state sales taxes paid.

Stuart Symington Reports from Washington

(Editor's note: Senator Symington's letter, reprinted below, was written by the Senator from Hong Kong on December 28 as a longhand personal note to his administrative assistant, Stanley Fike, of Independence, Missouri, a former Missouri newspaperman. Fike thought all readers of this column would be interested in the Senator's personal report on his visit with Missouri Servicemen at Cape Casey, Korea.

(The day after writing the letter from Hong Kong, Senator Symington arrived in Saigon, South Viet Nam, where he delivered a message to Bob Hope, his long time friend, from President Johnson. Symington called his office from Saigon at 8:55 Thursday night Viet Nam time, 8:55 Thursday morning Washington, D. C. time. Fike said reception was excellent as though the Senator were calling from Washington or Missouri.

(Symington spent seven days in South Viet Nam, leaving there January 4, for conferences with American representatives in Thailand, Egypt, Turkey, Italy, Germany, France and England before returning to Washington about the middle of January. By the time he returns, he will have visited all countries where there are major U. S. military detachments with the exception of the Dominican Republic. Symington is making the trip as a ranking member of the Senate Armed Services Committee.)

Hong Kong, December 28, 1965
Dear Stan:

Alaska, Japan, Thailand, Phillipines, Guam, Hawaii, Japan, Korea, Okinawa, Taiwan, Hong Kong. Today we leave for South Viet Nam.

A bit tiring, but thrilling and most informative.

High up in the sub-zero weather of the mountains of South Korea, so close to the North Korean Communist border that not even the commanding general is allowed to have any of his family, is Camp Casey, center camp of the 7th division.

On Christmas Eve, General Johnson arranged to have me have dinner with several dozen young Missourians of that division.

Colonel P. C. Hough of Independence, Mo., asked Sp/4 Pasco Walker to say grace. He was a fine looking young one, and enclosed is his prayer, which he wrote himself, and gave me when I asked for it. A Floridian, Negro incidentally, I wish we had him in Missouri.

So I thought I would share, with you all, these beautiful thoughts, written by a homesick boy serving his country, the finest Christmas present I ever expect to receive.

Happy New Year to everybody.

Stuart Symington

"Lord make us an instrument of thy peace, that where there is hatred, we may bring love, that where there is wrong, we may bring the spirit of forgiveness. Give us this Christmas Eve some share in the grace of Jesus Christ. Let obligation be changed to opportunity, and duty done with joy. We ask a special prayer for all the men in Vietnam. Help them, guide them and protect them from all the evil walks of life. Give our hands strength, not to do great things, but to do all that we can well. Heal the wounds of misunderstanding, jealousy, or regret, that scar our hearts and let the more gentle air of the Christmas spirit touch our lives. Heavenly Father we are indeed grateful that Senator Symington is with us, bless all the good deeds he is doing for the men and women of the world. Make his stay here an enjoyable one, and make his journey a safe one. As the old year draws to an end and the New Year beckons, grant us peace in the world, and peace in our own hearts. Bless our parents, our families, friends and gracious Lord bless us for what the body is about to receive, bless our bodies and feed our soul from time to time for Christ's sake, these blessings we ask in Jesus' name.

Amen."
